Paradox Shown In Verdict Of Judge Howson

Government Wins Case, But Loses—Plaintiff Motor Car Supply Company, Calgary, Loses, But Wins

Plaintiff wins the case, but loses; and defendant loses, but wins.

Paradoxical as it may seem, this is in effect the result of a judgment handed down in Edmonton on Saturday morning by Mr. Justice W. R. Howson in an action brought by the Motor Car Supply Company of Calgary against the Alberta government in an effort to have the Licensing of Trades and Businesses Act declared ultra vires of the legislature of Alberta.

Under the act, the company would have had to pay some $230 in license fees for its head office in Calgary and its branches in Edmonton and Lethbridge, but it refused to do so.

Under the circumstances costs of the action have been refused the government, although nominally the province is the winner of the case.

EFFECT OF JUDGMENT

Effect of the judgment is that while the Motor Car Supply Company has technically lost the action, all the declarations sought being refused, it has nevertheless won because of the interpretation Mr. Justice Howson has given to the statutes and the Orders-in-Council that have in whole or in part been repealed.

The judgment finds that as the various acts now stand after repeal or partial repeal, there is only one Order-in-Council that affects the plaintiff, this being No. 129 of 1937, which requires all wholesalers, the plaintiff being one of them, and all businesses generally, to take out

ALBERTA ACT RULING GIVEN AMPLIFICATION

Bank Taxation Act Contained No Reference To S.C. Act

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Amplifying their decision regarding the Alberta act respecting taxation of banks, which they disallowed in a written judgment released yesterday by Lord Maugham, the Lord Chancellor, the privy council in the decision pointed out that the act respecting taxation of banks contained no reference to the Alberta Social Credit act.

"It purported to be concerned with taxation of a direct character differing, however, from ordinary taxing statutes in singling out for taxation only banks transacting business in the province."

SOUGHT TO JUSTIFY ACT

The Alberta government sought to justify the act under section 92 of the British North America Act as being within the class of subjects described as "direct taxation within a province in order to raise revenue for provincial purposes."

Rejecting this argument, their Lordships of the privy council declared:

"It may be stated at the out set if indeed it is not self-evident, that the mere fact the revenue to a greater or smaller amount would be raised in the province by a highly selective measure of this unusual character is not sufficient to justify it coming within section 92.

"Under the guise of discriminatory taxation in a province, it would be easy not only to impair but even to render wholly nigatory the exclusive legislative authority of the dominion over a number of classes and subjects mentioned in section 91 (of the B.N.A. act) by making them valueless No one

Prolonged Quake Panics Residents Of Japan Capital

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A prolonged quake followed by frequent aftershocks sent Tokyo citizens running into the streets at 8:44 a.m. British time (2:44 a.m. M.S.T.) a Reuters news agency dispatch from Tokyo said today.

No damage was reported in Tokyo, the dispatch said, but it was believed the epicenter was in Miyagi prefecture about 200 miles northeast of Tokyo.

The central meteorological observatory in Japan said landslides and tidal waves were feared in Miyagi and Fukushima prefectures. Communications to the scene of the heaviest shocks were disrupted.

Chiang Kai-Shek Chooses Area Of New Battlefront

SHANGHAI, Nov. 5. — General Chiang Kai-Shek, with a group of Soviet Russian advisers, more than 100 new tanks, recently Russian-strengthened artillery, and troops withdrawn from the Hankow area, has chosen southern Hunan province in which to make a new stand against Japanese invasion.

The Chinese are taking up new positions in Hunan, south and southwest of Hankow, Chiang's former stronghold now being converted into a Japanese military and commercial citadel in the heart of China.

Communists Claim Daladier Inspired Attack On Offices

PARIS, Nov. 5. — Communists charged officially today that Premier Edouard Daladier's campaign against them inspired an attack by Nationalist bands on the party's headquarters last night.

A statement issued by Communists accused the premier of "complicity with the sworn enemies of Democracy."

STRAW VOTE ON SECESSION HAS CLOSE RESULT

REGINA, Nov. 5.—In a straw vote among readers of the Regina Leader-Post to gain Saskatchewan citizens' views on a proposal to form an autonomous British state in western Canada, the paper's poll Friday showed 1,607 in favor of secession and 1,629 against, a majority of 22 opposing the scheme.

Another 389 voted they would give the question consideration.

The poll was started following the annual convention of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, in Saskatoon. The convention approved a resolution asking the executive to study the question of setting up in western Canada an autonomous state within the British Empire.

THANKSGIVING TOO SOON SAY TURKEY RAISERS

CALGARY, Nov. 5.—Suggestion Canadian Thanksgiving date be set forward to Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, or to the United States Thanksgiving date, the last Thursday in November, has the complete support of Alberta turkey breeders.

Canadian Thanksgiving, in October, comes just one month too soon for the turkey farmers. Birds are not ready for the holiday table early in October.

A later Thanksgiving, turkey raisers say, would create two markets—the usual Christmas demand and an early market in November.

Curfew Imposed In Old Nazareth

JERUSALEM, Nov. 5.—British authorities today imposed a curfew on the Biblical town of Nazareth after unidentified persons hurled a bomb into an old Franciscan monastery used as a barracks for British troops. Two Arabs were killed in the explosion.

Ownership Of Old Stamps Questioned

HALIFAX, Nov. 5.—Ownership of early American stamps valued at between $2,500 and $3,000 was investigated today by Halifax police, who said they found the collection in the clothes of Neil Stultz, a vagrancy prisoner.

Accident Fatal

CALGARY, Nov. 5.—Injured in an automobile collision here Monday, Herbert Sainsbury, 58-year-old farmer of the Rocky Mountain district, died in hospital here late Friday.

HUNGARY SENDS TROOPS ACROSS DANUBE RIVER

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5—Hungarian troops crossed the Danube river on a pontoon bridge exactly on the scheduled second today to start occupying a slice of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

Hungary, which has awaited this moment since she lost territory after the Great War, called the day her "National Resurrection."

The first step was the occupation of the island of Little Schett, near the former Czech community of Doborgas.

Hungarian residents of the region, many dressed in colorful peasant costumes, came to cheer the regiment of infantry, first to cross the improvised bridge.

The territory was awarded Hungary by Italian and German mediators at Vienna last Wednesday.

Ambitions Of Hitler Il Duce Ban Hope Of European Peace

United States Looms Friend of Spanish Government as Opposed to Fascism—Want Loyalists to Win Fight

By H. L. PERCY

British United Press, Exclusive Cable to Edmonton Bulletin.

LONDON, Nov. 5—Adolf Hitler's colonial ambitions and the inflexible demand of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy that General Franco must have victory in Spain are rocks which may prove troublesome in the near future to Prime Minister Chamberlain's peace policy.

It is generally conceded in informed circles that both London and Paris have accepted Mussolini's dictum as a basis of the price which must be paid for conciliation with Italy. So far as diplomacy can make sure of anything final details to this end have been arranged, but there is an undercurrent of feeling from the United States which may affect the outcome.

Officialdom in the United States, although official neutrality is imposed on that country both by the U. S. Embargo Act and the traditional aloofness of American diplomacy from a European situation which might embroil the United States in another European war, is strongly sympathetic to the Spanish government.

The efforts of a Fascist coalition to crush democracy out of Spain have caused a deep personal resentment on the part of the majority of officials of the Roosevelt administration and they want the Loyalist government to win, but their hands are tied.

CAMPAIGN FOR CITY ELECTION GATHERS SPEED

Citizens Will Go To Polls November 9—Meetings Are Held

Candidates are swinging into the backstretch of the civic election campaign, with three weekdays to go before ballots are cast in 40 polls on election day, Wednesday, November 9.

One mayor, five aldermen and three school trustees must be elected. Burgesses must vote on a plebiscite as to whether they favor the city borrowing up to $250,000 in order to constitute itself a lending institution to aid building of homes, or to borrow an equal amount to build houses for rental at low rates.

CAMPAIGN MEETS

Saturday night there are campaign meetings at the Empire theatre and Highlands school; Monday at Garneau school and Alberta Avenue community hall, and Tuesday at the Memorial hall and Norwood school.

ADVANCE BALLOTS

With a rush in the last half hour, 24 or 25 votes in the civic election were cast at the advance poll in the Civic block Friday between 1 and 6 p.m. The poll will be open, in the assessor's office, ground floor, Saturday, from 1 to 9 p.m. All voters who will not be in the city on election day, November 9, may vote at this poll.

COW CAUSES TROUBLE FOR FOUR YOUTHS

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 5—Complaint of Rev. David Benson of the People's church at Stop 17, near here, that a cow had spent an hour in his church building Hallowe'en resulted in the court appearance of four youths today charged with breaking into the church and "committing mischief therein." The four were remanded.

THREE BRITISH PLANES START DISTANCE HOP

Take Off From Ismailia, Egypt, On Flight To Australia

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Nov. 5—Nine young British airmen, flying three Royal Air Force bombers in an Egypt-to-Australia distance record attempt, struck threatening weather over Arabia today just two hours after leaving Ismailia.

Squadron-Leader R. Kellett messaged at 6:50 a.m. (11:50 p.m. M.S.T.) that their position was 30 degrees north 37.10 east, with "weather conditions overcast and bumpy, with thunder, speed 180 miles an hour."

The position given placed them somewhere in the northwest section of the great Nefud Red-Sand desert area in northern Arabia.

The heavily-loaded planes, each with a crew of three, took off at 3:55 a.m. (8:55 p.m. M.S.T. Friday). They hoped to complete the projected 7,160-mile flight Monday.

Present record of 6,306 miles is held by the Soviet airmen who flew from Moscow to California by way of the North Pole in July, 1937.

Polio Reported

Following the reporting of two cases of infantile paralysis, or polio, schools at Whitelaw, 50 miles southwest of Peace River, were said to be closed on Saturday.

PERFECT PLAYING CONDITIONS FOR FOOTBALL FINAL

CALGARY, Nov. 5. — Perfect playing conditions appeared almost certain this morning for the western interprovincial football final here between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Bronks. The weather was ideal—cold and clear—and the ground was in good condition. A light snow yesterday morning melted quickly and had little effect on the turf.

Second game of the two-game total-point series will be played in Winnipeg next Saturday.

Bandits Get $250 In Winnipeg Raids

WINNIPEG, Novv. 5—Two robberies here last night netted bandits $250 in money orders, cheques and cash.

First victim was Abraham Hendin, grocery store proprietor, forced by two armed robbers to give up his cash box.

Walking into a post office substation, an unarmed thief asked Postal Clerk Donald Sullivan to make out a money order, then snatched the book containing 117 blanks and fled.

One New Case

Bringing the total reported from the district within the last week up to 11, one new case of diphtheria was reported to the provincial health department on Saturday from Rosalind, 70 miles southeast of this city, in the Daysland area. One death has been reported among the cases.

President Makes Nation-Wide Appeal For Democratic Candidates on Election Day—Favors Lehman Over Dewey in New York

HYDE PARK, N.Y., Nov. 5.—President Roosevelt last night urged the people of the United States to elect on next Tuesday candidates "known for their experience and their liberalism." The president, speaking from the library of his ancestral home here, also appealed for election of candidates "without regard to race, color or creed."

His 3,000-word address, broadcast over three national radio chains, rejected the "negative purposes proposed by old-line Republicans and Communists alike—for they are people whose only purpose is to survive against any other Fascist threat than their own."

The president urged re-election of Governor Herbert H. Lehman in his home state of New York and others on the Democratic ticket, mentioning Senator Robert F. Wagner, candidate for re-election, and Representative James M Mead, candidate for the short senatorial term, by name.

PRAISE MURPHY

He also took occasion to praise the record of Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan in handling Michigan strikes, saying he had substituted negotiation for risk of bloodshed. Murphy is opposed for re-election by former Governor Frank D Fitzgerald, Republican.

Without mentioning Lehman's Republican opponent, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, by name, Mr. Roosevelt said pointedly:

"We need more active law enforcement, not only against the lords of the underworld, but also

Clarke Registers Complaint Against Fortin Debt Plan

Former Mayor Scores Work of Present Council—Mayor Fry Outlines Progressive Program—Civic Election Meeting Orderly

The Fortin debt payment postponement scheme is a "monstrous swindle," ex-Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, K.C., told audiences at two civic campaign meetings Friday night, in his campaign for re-election to the mayoralty office. He declared that the plan provided no reduction of interest and that Edmonton citizens eventually would "pay through the nose."

The former mayor also scored the projected institution of trackless trolley busses in the street railway, declaring that Edmonton's street railway was one of the best and should be maintained, while the money for the trolley busses could better be spent for motor bus services to suburban districts.

Announcement of a paving program of Edmonton's arterial roads to be paid for out of revenue surplusses was made by Mayor J. W. Fry. This work will be pressed forward with as quickly as possible, and as funds permit, until Edmonton has been provided with paved streets second to no city in Canada. A start on this program was made in a modest way during the last two years, he stated, with more than $225,000 being spent in paving streets to facilitate the trarnsfer of

Deportation Of Hitler's Friend Asked

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Deportation of Fraulein Leni Riefenstahl—who spent her first day in the United States explaining she was Chancellor Hitler's friend but "No, no, not his 'girl friend'."—was demanded today by Representative Andrew Somers, Brooklyn Democrat.

In a telegram to Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, Somers asked that the German film actress be barred from the United States on the grounds she had arrived to disseminate propaganda.

The hazel-eyed, auburn-haired beauty (no propaganda there) explained yesterday she was in the U.S. for a holiday. She said her visit had nothing to do with the American showing of her 1,700,000-foot film of the 1936 Olympics.

TODAY'S ODDEST NEWS

EMPORIUM, Pa., Nov. 5.—A spider bite sent McClellan Shadman, 20, to a hospital, but that was just the beginning of his troubles. Before he got out he accepted his physician's advice and: underwent an appendix operation, had his tonsils removed and was treated for three hernias.

OSCADE, Mich., Nov. 5.—Joseph Herbert of Detroit was celebrating today his victory over a 125-pound deer. Herbert, armed only with bow and arrow, wounded the deer at a distance of 100 feet. Then after a four-hour chase, the Hunter killed the deer with four more arrows. It was the first deer bagged since the start of the special two-week bow and arrow season opened here Monday.

ALBERTA PARKS COMPLETE PLAN FOR SECESSION

BANFF, Nov. 5.—Preparations for drafting a petition to the dominion government urging it to exclude the province of Alberta from taxing authority in the national parks of the province, were completed at a meeting here last night.

The dominion will be asked to collect the total amount of taxes in the parks and to earmark them for expenditure within park boundaries. At present various taxes, including income and gasoline levies, are collected by the province. The petition will be placed before a mass meeting for endorsation Nov. 16.

Not Guilty Pleas Kidnaping Cases

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Four members of an alleged "crime syndicate," facing possible death sentences, pleaded not guilty today to three kidnapping indictments accusing them of a series of abductions in which they allegedly demanded a total of $425,000 ransom and killed Arthur Fried, youthful White Plains, N.Y., business man.

Terrific Is Cost Paid In Peace

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 5.—Capt. H. G. Scott, former Calgary police magistrate, told the Canadian Club here Friday night Britain would "pay a terrible price for her blind generosity" in permitting cession of the Sudeten territories to Germany.

The part in the settlement of the Czechoslovakian crisis played by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain was "a shameful surrender to the bloodiness of war," he said.

He described history of the central European nations which led to the Sudeten problem and condemned the League of Nations as "a miserable, contemptible failure."

He said the Sudeten situation was a "potential weapon waiting for Germany to use," and he predicted Germany would not rest until she had regained all territories lost in the Great War.

Former Magistrate Scott is well-known in Edmonton, and has addressed service clubs here on many occasions. A world traveller and keen observer, his remarks are always given great consideration in unusually well informed circles.

GUILTY BROTHER GIVES BROTHER COP REAL TIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—"Kid, I'm going to give you the biggest start a cop ever had."

Spoken by a 36-year-old Dannemora convict to his 26-year-old policeman-brother, those words brought a solution of the $427,000 Rubel Ice Company armored car holdup, the greatest cash holdup in American history which for four years had defied all police efforts to break.

The inside story of the two brothers, one a policeman, the other a criminal, became known today. Early in September, Robert Stewart was a probationary New York policeman hoping to become a regular cop. Up in Dannemora, his brother, Archie, was serving from 40 to 60 years for a bank robbery.

Police officials, suspecting Archie of complicity, sent the young brother to talk with him. Archie admitted his part in the holdup. He told about the others, too. Police Commissioner Valentine this week announced the robbery was solved. Seven have been indicted in connection with the crime.

Accidental Firing Of Anti-Aircraft Gun Kills Soldier

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The accidental firing of one of Britain's famed "12 shots a minute" anti-aircraft guns, in which a blank had been inserted instead of an empty shell case, killed one Territorial soldier today and wounded five others.

The crew manning the gun, reputed to be a deadly menace to aircraft, was "clenaing up" after a mock air attack when a blank shell left in the breech was fired accidentally, hurling a ramrod into the crew.

United States Disagrees With Japan's Three-Power Plan For Orient

AMERICA WILL NOT SUPPORT NIPPON PLAN

Secretary Hull Says U.S Will Stand By Treaties Regarding China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Cordell Hull, secretary of state, indicated Friday the United States would not abide by Japan's intention to link Japan, China and Manchukuo together politically and economically.

In a formal statement he also gave the world to understand the United States would not accept any denunciation by Japan of the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's independence and the open door of commercial opportunities there.

SERVES NOTICE

He served notice the United States stands on the existing treaties dealing with Japan and China. The American attitude, he said, is governed by the generally accepted principles of international law, by treaties, and by principles of fair dealing and fair play among nations.

He did not indicate what action the United States would take and denied reports he was consulting with other powers to induce them to denounce their commercial treaties with Japan.

The fact Hull twice mentioned China and Japan in his short statement was interpreted to mean that even as he will refuse to concede Japan the right to make a peace in China prejudicial to the nine-power treaty, so he will also refuse to recognize the right to China to make a peace with Japan which would injure rights of United States and other nations.

CHINA MIGHT SEEK PEACE

It is thought possible the time might come when China, tired of the war, might seek to make peace with Japan by direct negotiation. The United States, and probably other signatories to the nine-power treaty reached in Washington in 1922 would then come forward to say China had also incurred obligations under the treaty, namely to respect the rights of other nations in China, and could not throw them over.

It was pointed out neither Japan nor China has the privilege, by her own action, to get rid of the nine-power treaty. Significantly, there is nothing in the treaty providing for denunciation of it, which means it continues in perpetuity unless the powers again get together to change it.

Japan's contention is that between 1922, when the nine-power treaty was signed, and today conditions have radically changed and that changing conditions invalidate the treaty. China no longer exists as it was in 1922 and Japan is the master of southeastern Asia.

The reply made here is that conditions have changed because of Japan's invasion of China in violation of pacts such as the nine power and the Kellogg treaties. Therefore Japan cannot expect to use the new conditions as a legal basis for demanding a new treaty or no treaty at all.

Spanish Threats

a deep distrust of Hitler's tactics.

It is stated that the Fuehrer has privately indicated to Prime Minister Chamberlain that the issue of the return of the German colonies will not be raised until after the New Year, but in spite of this assurance the colonial propaganda in Germany has been intensified.

Portugal has been approached by Oswold Pierow, South African defence minister, now in London, to get the reaction of that country to a portion of the Portugese colony of Angola being handed over to Germany, and Premier Salazar has quite definitely stated that the proposal cannot be considered for one moment.

PRIVATE OVERTURES

Private overtures to Belgium regarding relinquishment of part of her mandated territories have been received with an equally cold reception and it has been bluntly stated that Belgium will not hand over any part of the Belgian Congo.

All this endangers Prime Minister Chamberlain's projects for colonial appeasment for the dictators.

Meantime Hitler and Mussolini are confining their attention to Europe, and dictatorial government re-made the world map this week at unprecedented speed.

Impetus given the totalitarian philosophy by the Munich four-power agreement was felt with mounting force from the China Sea to the Mediterranean.

Dictatorial regimes consolidated economic and political power, added to their prestige among the small nations and met at conference tables to re-draw the frontiers of central Europe.

IN FAR EAST

In the Far East, Japan declared all of East Asia her political and economic domain, made the future of American and British interests uncertain in that area and called for a world-wide new deal to set up a fair balance of power. Japanese armies will enforce Tokyo's policy if necessary, Premier Fumimaro Konoye declared.

In central Europe, a brief meeting of the Nazi and Fascist foreign ministers sliced another 4,000 square miles from Czechoslovakia, and returned 800,000 persons to Hungarian rule.

There was talk that Hungary's long vacant thrône at last would be occupied—possibily by regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy rather than the exiled Archduke Otto.

FROM BUCHAREST

From Bucharest came hints that Roumania would like to have the Czech towns of Apshitza, Apsha-Slatina and Biseritza-Alba, all along the River Tica and all demanded for Roumania in a resolution passed by the league for cultural union of all Roumanians.

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini had never made their power felt more effectively than in the quick action by their foreign ministers at Vienna, where the southern edge of the dwindling Czech republic was sliced off as a gift to Hungary.

PLAN IS BLOCKED

The German Fuehrer's influence was practically noticeable in as much as he blocked an Italian-favored plan for giving all of the Czech province of Ruthenia to Hungary in order to form a common frontier between Hungary and Poland. Even more significant, it was felt in Prague, was the fact that Hungary was given important railroad centers which appeared to indicate Budapest would be the spearhead of the future Nazi thrusts Eastward toward Soviet Russia.

Although Czechoslovakia has lost more than 15,000 of her 54,000 square miles to Germany, Poland and Hungary, there was no assurance that further realignment of frontiers could be avoided.

DISTINCTLY CONCERNED

Yugoslavia was distinctly concerned about her minority problems and her regent, Prince Paul, arrived in Bucharest for a conference with King Carol on international problems.

Poland recently has watched the spread of the Nazi sphere of influence with misgivings, particularly in view of recent friction with Germany. Fears have been expressed in Warsaw that Nazis eventually might foster the creation of a free Ukrainain state carved from Czech, Roumanian and Russian territory. In such an event, Poland's 5,000,000 Ukrainians might be involved.

DUTY ON CANADA NEWSPRINT PLAN IN AUSTRALIA

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—An import duty on newsprint paper under the British preferential tariff has been recommended by the Australian tariff board and legislation partially adopting this report likely will be introduced shortly in the Australian parliament, the Commercial Intelligence Journal said yesterday in its current issue.

The report said that while newsprint paper has not yet been produced commercially in Australia an association of newspaper, promoters of a company for newsprint manufacture, had applied to the government for assistance by means of a bounty on production of £4 ($15.25) a ton, the amount of the bounty to be raised by means of a duty on all such paper imported.

Newspaper and publishing companies not associated with the promoters of the industry opposed the proposed bounty and duty.

Australia is Canada's second most valuable customer for newsprint paper. For the three months ended last June 30, the latest figure available, Canada exported 943,000 hundredweight of newsprint paper, valued at $2,045,000, to Australia.

United States is the leading newsprint paper customer and the United Kingdom is third.

Consort Flames Cost $18,000 To Business Firms

CONSORT, Nov. 5.—Breaking out in a car in a repair shop, fire destroyed the McFetridge block, housing a garage, implement store and drug store at 5:30 a.m. Saturday. Loss was estimated at about $18,000. Only a radio was saved from the drug store operated by R. W. Holmes. Three cars were destroyed on the main floor of the garage and 10 were driven safely from a basement storeroom. McFetridge and Son lost a large stock of farm machinery and a half-car load of binder twine. Loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Calgary Women in Court Tangle Over Dispersement Of Sweepstake Ticket Win

CALGARY, Nov. 5.—"No comment," said Mrs. Florence Larkin of Calgary when told last night Mrs. Mary McCool, also of Calgary, had been granted an interim injunction by the high court of Eire restraining payment of $2,650 on an Irish Hospitals sweepstake ticket.

Mrs. McCool, wife of a railway carpenter and mother of 12 children, was "not at home."

Mrs. Larkin is secretary of a Calgary syndicate which claims a share of the prize money from a "Lucky 1938 Derby" ticket, but there are many complications.

The ticket was sent to Dublin under the name of Mrs. McCool. She claims sole ownership. The syndicate headed by Mrs. Larkin, who sold the ticket, dispute the claim.

Mrs. Larkin, it is understood, still retains possession of the prize ticket, refusing to surrender it to Mrs. McCool.

Post Office Is Looted By Thugs In South Village

BYEMOOR, Nov. 5.—Post office at Endiang, near here, was broken into early Thursday morning, the safe forced and $35 stolen.

Main door to the safe was unlocked, and the thieves forced the locked inner door with an iron bar. The post office, operated by A. J. Evans, is an annex to the Red and White store at Endiang.

Alberta Bank Taxation Act Disallowed by British Privy Council

against the lords of the over-world."

He said the state could not afford to supplant "seasoned leaders like Governor Lehman with men, no matter how sincere, who have yet to win their spurs or prove what they really know or where they really stand in the fight for social justice. Those who truly and sincerely join the struggle for social justice, economic democracy for its own sake do not throw stones at veteran fighters in that cause."

CRITICIZES DICTATORSHIP

Mr. Roosevelt took another shot at dictatorships and declared the new deal did not assume for a minute that "all we have done is right or all that we have done has been successful, but our economic and social program of the past 5½ years has definitely given to the United States a more stable and less artificial prosperity than any other nation in the world has enjoyed."

"The very fact," he added, "that the business slump beginning last fall and running into last summer did not become a major economic disaster like the slump that ran from 1929 to 1933, is the best kind of proof that fundamentally we have found the right tack."

He pointed to a pick-up in automobile and other industrial employment and said he had been happy in the last six months to see "how swiftly a large majority of business men have been coming around to accept the objectives of a more stable economy and of certain necessary supervision of private activities in order to prevent a return of the serious abuses and conditions of the past.

"But if there should be any weakening of the power of a Liberal government next Tuesday," he continued, "it would resurrect false hopes on the part of some business men, now beginning to change antiquated ideas, that if they can hold out a little longer no adaption to any change will be necessary."

LIKE LARGE FACTORY

Declaring modern interdependent industrial and agricultural society was like a large factory and the conveyor belts must be kept moving, he said dictators had realized that problem, but had kept the belts moving "at a terrible price to the individual and to his civil liberty."

"The new deal," he asserted, "has been trying to keep those belts moving without paying such a price. It does not wish to run or manage any part of our economic machine which private enterprise can run and keep running. That should be left to individuals, to corporations, to any other form of private management, with profit for those who manage well."

He said that as of today Fascism and Communism—and old-line Tory Republicans—were not "threats to the continuation of our form of government," but that if American democracy "ceases to move forward as a living force, seeking day and night by peaceful means to better the lot of our citizens, Fascism and Communism, aided, unconsciously perhaps, by old-line Tory Republicanism, will grow in strength."

NEED LIBERAL GOVERNMENT

In asking voters throughout the country to remember the "need for continuous Liberal government" when they vote next Tuesday, the President said:

"In other lands across the water the flares of militarism and conquest, terrorism and intolerance, have vividly revealed to Americans for the first time since the revolution how precious and extraordinary it is to be allowed this free choice of free leaders for free men.

"But we cannot carelessly assume that a nation is strong and great merely because it has a democratic form of government. We have learned that a democracy weakened by internal dissension, by mutual suspicion born of social injustice, is no match for autocracies which are ruthless enough to repress internal dissension.

MUST CONSIDER PEOPLE

"Democracy in order to live must become a positive force in the daily lives of its people. It must make men and women whose devotion it seeks, feel that it really cares for the security of every individual; that it is tolerant enough to inspire an essential unity among citizens; and that it is militant enough to maintain liberal against social oppression at home and against military aggression abroad."

It appeared the president was making a direct reference to a whispering anti-semitic campaign being waged against Governor Lehman when he asked the electors to pick candidates for office "without regard to race, color or creed."

FORMER M. L. A. TELLS HOW TO RESTORE CREDIT

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, Alta., Nov. 5.—How to restore Alberta's credit and preserve threatened freedom of speech, press, assembly and access to the courts, was the subject of an address delivered here Friday night by G. N. Johnson, Coronation, former Speaker of the Alberta legislature.

The former M.L.A. was guest speaker at a meeting called by the provisional unity committee elected in June. Main business of the meeting was to put the executive committee on a permanent footing, as the nucleus of a constituency organization. Mayor E. S. Hogg presided, and named a nominating committee of five, who brought in a slate based on a zoning policy, three members for the city, eight for the west and five for eastern points, beside a president and vice-president.

E. S. Hogg, mayor of Red Deer, is the president of the permanent committee.

Women have been asked to elect a lady for vice-president, and one other lady member for Red Deer.

Other members elected were W. H. Shirholtz and Chas. Bruce, Rocky Mountain House; R. Crawford, Leslieville; J. Cochrane, Alhambra; John Watson, Evarts; B. C. Learned and S. N. Carscallen, Sylvan Lake; W. M. Hunt, Poplar Ridge; Matt Gilbert, Ardley; P. E. Graham and J. R. McClure, Red Deer; W. Smith, G. W. Speirs, R. A. Van Slyke and Percy Smith.

BANKS FOUND SOLE CHARGE OF ALL DOMINION

Local Plan Contained No Reference To Social Credit Act.

would suggest—and certainly counsel for the appellants in his able argument did not—that provincial legislation of this character would be valid."

NO GENERAL TEST

Their lordships submitted that a decision whether a provincial act which indirectly interferes in some degree with one of the powers of the dominion is or is not ultra vires must be determined as the case arises. No general test applicable to all cases could safely be laid down. The tax bill, however, they declared, presented no serious difficulty.

"In the first place, it is plain the taxation is aimed simply at banks, including savings banks," they stated. "And within section 91 banking and savings banks are within the exclusive legislative authority of the dominion.

"On the other hand it is strange to find a province singling out "in order to raise revenue for provincial purposes" banks and savings banks, and no other wealthy corporation, body or person in the province."

TAXATION PROHIBITIVE

Alluding to evidence heard by the courts below that banks would be called upon to pay a heavy increase in taxation under the provisions of the bill, their lordships observe the facts are sufficient to show such a rate of taxation must be prohibitive and must have been known by the Alberta legislature to be prohibitive.

In reaching this conclusion the privy council holds the supreme court of Canada justified in considering the magnitude of the tax proposed for Alberta was such that if it were applied by other provinces, it would have the effect of preventing the banks from carrying on their business.

Dealing with the contention of counsel for Alberta that serious consequences of excessive bank taxation should not lead to the conclusion the bill was ultra vires, their lordships were unable to agree that argument should prevail in a case where the taxation in a practical business sense is prohibitive.

FAR REACHING CHANGES

In the opinion of the privy council a more decisive point, however, was a review of the legislative history of Alberta as leading up to the measure in question, including an attempt to create a new economic era in the province.

"At the time when the bill was passing through the legislature, most profound and far-reaching changes in the operations of commerce, trade and finance were intended by bills before the provincial legislature and acts already passed," their lordships state.

"It was plain banks and savings banks operating in Alberta might greatly interfere with those proposed changes. Examination of the province of Alberta Social Credit act leaves little doubt the act was an attempt to regulate and control banks and banking in the province."

OTHER GROUNDS

The judgment declares there are other and narrower grounds on which the validity of the bank taxation bill had been attacked. In view of the conclusion reached, however, it was felt unnecessary to deal with them in any way.

Their lordships had been invited to deal with the question of costs but did not think it right to depart from the usual practice in deciding constitutional issues "of the nature of those arising in this case." Consequently their lordships did not make a costs order.

NEW TENDERS FOR GUN MAKING MAY BE ASKED

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—Evidence as to feasibility of calling tenders for the manufacture of machine guns will be offered at the Bren gun inquiry, Hon. J. L. Ralston, chief commission counsel, announced Friday, despite a protest frfom Lt. Col. Geo. Drew, author of the article in a national magazine, which gave rise to the inquiry.

Col. Ralston announced he would call H. W. Coofy, manager of a rifle factory at Cobourg, Ont., a man from the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. of the United States, and representatives of five Canadian companies named as possible manufacturers of the Bren gun.

These companies were mentioned during consideration by the inter-departmental committee for the control of profits on armament contracts of the contract under which John Inglis Co., Limited, of Toronto, is to make 7,000 Bren guns for the government on a cost-plus 10 per cent. basis.

Medic-Farmer Develops White Sweet Tomato

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 5.—Dr. Jonas Clark, 85-year-old Gilroy physician and farmer, has disclosed he had developed a white tomato after eight years of experimentation.

Dr. Clark described the tomato as "absolutely white, about the same shape as the ordinary tomato, but much sweeter."

He predicted a commercial use of the new tomato, which he produced by saving and replanting seeds from one particular vine of yellow tomatoes that were unusually light in color.

CHANT CLAIMS MONEY WASTED ON S.C. PLAN

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

ATHABASCA, Alta., Nov. 5—Athabasca by-election campaign is warming up and charges by W. N. Chant, M.L.A. for Camrose and former minister of agriculture in the Aberhart cabinet that Alberta government had squandered $400,000 of public moneys in a "vain attempt to get Social Credit" featured a Liberal rally here Friday night.

"The government" said Mr. Chant, "has wasted $150,000 on the Socred board, $50,000 or thereabouts on testing the validity of their legislation in the courts and another $200,000 on fiddling around with other Social Credit experiments."

"Had they listened to their own legal advisor, the government would have saved $50,000 on court charges and perhaps much more," he added.

PRIVATE INFORMATION

Dr. Walter Morrish, M.L.A., said he had "private information from a source that never failed him before that government had ordered the stopping of their grant to the Edmonton Public School Board if the latter did not immediately pay 100 cents on the dollar in interest owing to the government."

"The school board has not yet been officially informed of this, but I challenge the government to deny it," he said. "I am chairman of the finance committee of the board. On June 2, the government wrote us saying unless we paid all the interest on money owing them, instead of the half interest rate they were paying us, they would discontinue the grant.

"We took matters up with our legal advisors and are ready for proper action. The government on Friday told its officials to stop this grant, I charge, but they are waiting till this election is over before they make that fact public.

"We have some $217,000 of government bonds in our sinking fund, while they have some $60,000 or $65,000 of ours in theirs.

"We offered to trade on an even basis when we heard the threat of the stoppage of the grant, and to exchange $60,000 of our bonds for the same amount of theirs to end the interest squabble. The offer was turned down. The government preferred to stop the grant. I would welcome their denial of this charge." Dr. Morrish concluded.

Farmers must have loans at low interest rates, Rayner Whiteley, Liberal candidate said.

"In Quebec money is loaned to a farmer by lending companies at 5% of which 1½% is paid by the provincial government. Why doesn't Aberhart's government give us 3½% money by doing something similar, instead of wasting time and money on ultra-vires legislation," he asked.

"The present government had been inefficient," J. J. Bowlen, M.L.A., asserted. "It has simply excited the people's imagination instead of delivering the goods."

The campaign will end Saturday night by a Liberal rally in Colinton, the home town of both C. H. Tade, the Social Credit candidate, and Rayner Whiteley, Liberal standard bearer in the by-election. Liberal leader E. L. Gray will be the main speaker.

Premier Aberhart and Hon. E. C. Manning spent several days there, and the campaign manager for Mr. Tade, Floyd Baker, M.L.A., has his headquarters in Colinton.

With Athabasca town reported decisively Liberal and Colinton with a Liberal edge, Boyle and Lac la Biche are the heavy Social Credit hopes, but the issue rests with outlying points and both sides have been busy contacting them in the past several days.

CHAMBERLAIN, HALIFAX, HAVE 2 OBJECTIVES

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Two objectives will guide Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, during their visit to Paris late this month, political circles told Havas today.

The statesmen first will emphasize the strength of the ties uniting Great Britain and France. Secondly they will consult French statesmen as to the future lines of policy. The visit will start Nov. 23, to last three days.

It was suggested in political circles Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax expect to end doubts which have occasionally been expressed in Paris regarding the tendencies of British foreign policy. It will show, in other words, the policy of appeasing the totalitarian states in no way affects Franco-British relations.

Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First

Never Give Your Children Unknown "Bargain" Remedies To Take—Unless You Ask Your Doctor. Unknowingly You May Be Risking Their Health —Just To Save A Few Pennies

A MOTHER may save a few pennies giving her children unknown, unproved preparations. But the life of a child is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

When giving the common children's remedy, Milk of Magnesia, never ask for "Milk of Magnesia" alone—but always ask for "Phillips'."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation — marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—it is a fact that anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Buy a Poppy

As is the custom at this time of the year, the Canadian Legion is today inviting people in Edmonton and throughout Canada to buy the familiar cloth reproductions of the poppies which blow in Flanders Fields. The majority of Canadians living in centres where they are offered have long since made it a practice to buy one or more of these fitting and inexpensive mementoes of the titanic struggle in which a half million of our countrymen fought and in which 50,000 of them gave the ultimate proof of fidelity to their country and the cause of freedom. If there were no other reason, the annual poppy sale would be an event of national importance because it helps to keep alive the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice, and freshens the admonition that we must not "break faith with those who died" by forgetting what they bequeathed to us.

But there is of course the other and very practical consideration. These poppies are made by returned men who by reason of disabilities have few other opportunities to earn. The proceeds from their sale go to help needy veterans and their dependents. For many of these the improvement in the times has meant little, because of lingering war injuries; for some no betterment of general conditions can ever mean much. The help that is so richly deserved is also urgently needed.

It is a small thing in itself to drop a coin in a box at a street corner and pin a poppy in one's button-hole; but it is an act big in significance, and big also in the aggregate assistance thus given to returned men who find the going hard.

On to Vancouver

The "Waseca gap" has been filled in, and there is now a direct gravelled highway through the heart of the prairie country from Winnipeg to Edmonton—and on to Jasper. Important in itself, this new all-weather road connecting Edmonton with Battleford, Saskatoon and the Manitoba capital is also of importance as opening a short and dependable route for motorists in all parts of central and northern Saskatchewan to Jasper Park. And of prospective importance as well because it will strengthen the demand—and the pressure—for construction west from Jasper to tap the highway system of British Columbia and provide a short-cut from the prairies to the coast.

If Vancouver and other British Columbia centres are interested in drawing tourist traffic from the central and northern areas of the prairie provinces, they have now an increased incentive to urge the need of this new connecting-link upon the attention of their provincial Government and legislature. And motorists in central and northern Saskatchewan have now common interest with those in central and northern Alberta to do what they can to get the short-cut completed.

The "ever green" route is now an accomplished fact from Winnipeg to the summit of the Rockies. A hundred miles, or less, of new building would connect Jasper with Blue River and extend the new trans-prairie highway to Vancouver. The prairie provinces have done their share. It is now up to the Government of British Columbia, with assistance from the Dominion, to bridge the remaining gap and provide a second all-Canadian highway through the mountains.

Premier Konoye has told the world, in general but sufficiently plain terms, about the new order of things Japan intends to set up in the Far East. If the despatches present the plan in outline only, the details are easily filled in.

What it amounts to is that China is to be re-cast in the Japanese mould. It is to be ruled from Tokyo, disciplined by Japanese forces, and its resources exploited for the profit of Japanese industry, trade and finance. Its foreign relations will be determined by its masters, its internal economy directed to their advantage; with other nations "on the outside looking in."

The meaning is that the "open door" is to be no longer open. If it is left even ajar to foreign trade, this will be only so far as Japanese interests are benefitted or not interfered with. Manchuria's commerce with western nations—Canada included—shrivelled up when it came under Japanese control, and Manchuria is the model on which Japanese control of China is to be patterned.

As a necessary preliminary to the carrying out of this program the Nine Power pact—to which Canada is a signatory—will have to be re-written—at Japanese dictation. The original signatories to this pact, guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China, were the United States, Belgium, Britain, China, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and Portugal. Other countries having interests in the Pacific later became parties to the guarantee.

Japan, having torn up this treaty and ravaged the country it was pledged to protect, is now telling the other guarantors they will have nothing to say as to what it will do to China. Which, with all respect to Premier Konoye, remains to be seen.

Editorial Notes

Taxpayers in Forest Lawn, a municipality on the outskirts of Calgary, staged a "strike". They claim their municipal taxes have gone up unreasonably, largely because of relief costs. The only news in the report is that the taxpayers of one municipality have gone on strike. The condition of which they complain is common.

The British House of Commons voted down a Labor resolution declaring the Government had failed to protect the civilian population against air raids, and passed a Government amendment approving the new defence program. What this seems to amount to is this: Whereas the Government has not failed to protect the country against air raids it should get busy on the job.

Alberta farmers are to make something of a mass demonstration of their products at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto and the International at Chicago. They are sending 160 exhibits of grains and 13 carloads of livestock to compete in these outstanding exhibitions. Produce prices are down, grain prices in particular, but not so the quality of Alberta products nor the enterprise of the farmers in showing the world what they have to offer.

Religion Day By Day

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

"APPETIZING" CHRISTIANS

In a little book of prayers I read, "May our religion be real and satisfying to us, and appetizing to others." That word "Appetizing" is a flash of genius. It strikes at the very centre of Christian living and of the Kingdom program.

If there were more "appetizing" saints there would be more converts. Men are seldom argued or reasoned into discipleship; they are won by the example of Christians. The way in which the friends of Jesus carry on, in crisis and in every day living—their serenity, strength and sweetness—whets the appetites of beholders for the same qualties in themselves.

Few of us can preach or write or organize; but even the least of us, however, lowly and sequestered our lot, can make our religion appetizing to others.

May all whose lives touch ours, O heavenly Father, see in us something of Jesus, the One altogether lovely. Amen.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Perhaps some of the customers, more astute than myself, can disclose the secret of how to win an Irish Sweep. My own studies have been ineffectual. A miner's wife who won $80,000, attributes it to a black cat that ran across her path. At any rate, "Ron," her husband, won't go down the pit any more. Another winner of a substantial prize attributes it to faith in God, while a reliefer named "O'Toole" in Burnaby, B.C., who drew a starter, attributes it to "the luck of the Irish."

HOW DO YOU WIN A SWEEP?

It's all very perplexing to one seeking a scientific basis for future operations. I'm beginning to fear there's something crooked about sweeps. I've had a ticket on three different occasions, and haven't won a prize yet.

My sympathies to Rabbi Samuel Sachs of Toronto, outspoken denouncer of gambling in general and of sweepstakes in particular, whose wife was one of seven ladies who drew a non-starter and split $2,175.

Instead of a first prize in an Irish Sweep, I'm willing to compromise with the gift of a Canadian chartered bank.

Got a cheque for $900 the other day from an English source that sought to make payment to parties in Canada easier by having an account in a Canadian bank. The bank selected is in Nova Scotia. So the bank in the west charges $2.25 commission for handling the cheque drawn on the account in the east. Wish I was a bank!

Reference in yesterday's column to the use made by the German Intelligence of the "personal" columns of a New York paper to contact a would-be "agent" for its espionage section, make one wonder what some of the freak "personals" mean. Here is one from a current issue of a Vancouver paper:

HELP! WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

OTTI ? ? ? ? ? ?
Spin.

If you can work out what that means, you're a better man that I am, Gunga Din.

From current issues of the London Times, I take the following heart-throb:

> Beloved! Courage. Dawn will come. My love, faith enfolds you. Waiting, loving.
> Violet.

Appeal to some honest, chivalrous burglar is made in the following:

> Widow of Harry Hawker, airman, pleads for return of diamond half-hoop ring and for one of gold mementoes of her late husband, stolen from Dorset House on Friday last.

"Cruel Sports," printed by animal-lovers, tenders abject apologies to Lord Middelton "for the unjust and defamatory imputation that he used pole traps in catching birds."

With the aid of Shakespeare "Alpha" makes final disposition of "Anon" in these terms:

> Anon. Please read Merchant of Venice, Scene 2, first speech. No more to say ever.
> Alpha.

Most of these personal messages are obviously related to affairs of the heart. Who or what is symbolized by "low-winged monoplane" in the message to "O", as follows:

> "O. Low-winged monoplane passing for ever out of sight. Farewell."

There's suggestion of the heroic solution of a matrimonial triangle in the following tribute to Edna:

GOLDEN NUGGETS OF HUMAN NATURE

> Edna, dear. For all you did in such a sporting manner, we thank you, since it made our happiness the more complete. If ever we can help you in any way, we will do so. All our love. D. and E.

The "Want Ads" are full of human revelation, too. Jane Austen could have built a novel on the scant frame-work afforded by this study in human needs:

> Wanted. A really plain but experienced efficient governess for three girls. Music, French, German required. Brilliancy of conversation and symmetry of form objected to, as the father is much at home and there are grown up sons.

Long before government relief came into common use, impoverished sons of the gentry used to advertise their needs. Here is one that appeared in the London Morning Post in 1889. You'll mark the pre-Hitlerian note:

> Will any rich person take a gentleman and board him? Of good family, age 27, good musician, thoroughly conversant with office work. No objection to turn Jew. Lost his money through dishonest trustee.

For the true aristocratic note one must go back further still to this from an old Paris Figaro:

> Wanted. A Professor to come once a week to the home of a noble family, in order to reform the pronunciation of a parrot.

Don't overlook the want ads. They're rich alluvial for those miners who go seeking for nuggets of human nature.

Warning From a By-Stander

Palestine is far from being merely a Jewish problem.

On the contrary, it illustrates three tendencies of world-wide significance.

Its present troubles mark another step in the attempt to break up the British Empire, and the way in which those troubles have been fomented is another illustration of the methods being used by the Fascist Powers in their attempt at world dominion.

In Palestine, as elsewhere, the British have been dilatory.

In Palestine, as elsewhere, they have been gullible.

One can be forgiven the suspicion that they have been slow to put down terrorism and quick to accept empty Fascist promises because of the fatal rift in the upper ranks of Britain's conservative party—a rift that may prove fatal to democracy.

Mussolini's promises to shut off anti-British propaganda among the Arabs have been as blandly broken as they have been glibly given. Hitler has continued to furnish arms and supplies to Arab terrorists.

Britain's government has been complacent rather than vigilant. Its attitude invites disaster.

Yesterday it was Czechoslovakia. Tomorrow it may be Palestine. What will it be next?

Yesterday it was the imaginary woes of the Sudeten Germans. Today, it is the equally imaginary woes of the Arabs. What will it be next?

Hitler and Mussolini, themselves persecutors of minorities, are using a hypocritical concern for other peoples' minorities as a means of creating division and paving the way for conquest.

Der Fuehrer's theories of Aryan supremacy and Mussolini's anxious "Me, too" (Since when have the heirs of the Romans been Aryan blonds?) are particularly dangerous to the British Empire, where 70,000,000 whites exist in a sea of 430,000,000 Asiatic and African races.

"I think there is only one ideal that the British Empire can set before itself in this regard," Winston Churchill said at the Premiers' conference of 1923, "and that is that there should be no barrier of race, color or creed which should prevent any man by merit from reaching any station if he is fitted for it."

To give way before Nazi theories of Aryan supremacy is to abandon the ideals of the British, American and French revolutions, to turn one's back on 1688, 1776 and 1789, and to loose the ties of the empire.

Will those who have mistaken Britain's own interests in Spain and Czechoslovakia mistake them now in Palestine?—New York Post.

Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORCROSS

J. E. NORCROSS

LONDON, Eng.—(By Mail)—Well, after fifty years the Freethinkers are again to hold an international conference in London. Sixty members of Parliament have petitioned the Home Secretary to forbid it and he has replied that whatever his own views he has neither the power nor the inclination to do so.

The protests, however, continue. On the Sunday before the conference 20,000 men, praying silently, will march through the streets of London in procession as a "public reparation for the insult offered to God." The procession is organized by the Roman Catholics.

The conference, however, might well have been left to itself. It is a private meeting and no propaganda will result. Among its British supporters are Mr. H. G. Wells, Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, Sir Arthur Keith, Mr. Ernest Thurtle, M.P., and Prof. Harold Laski, some of whom might describe themselves as agnostics but none of whom, possibly, would declare themselves atheists in the Bradlaughian sense.

The Bishop of Ely, the Rev. B. O. F. Heywood, takes a broadminded view of the conference.

"It seems important," he says, "to preserve the right of free speech. Suppression of the congress would have been a form of persecution. Moreover, persecution is apt to provoke sympathy with the persecuted and so defeat its object.

"I can hardly believe the congress will damage the cause of religion. It may, indeed, have the opposite result."

Your Health

By DR. FRANK McCOY

When the heart beats too rapidly, the cause may very possibly be found in some condition outside of the heart itself.

The most probable cause of a heart rate which is speeded up is the stomach and distention of the stomach coming from faulty habits of eating may very easily induce a pressure up against the heart. When the stomach is too full, either as a result of eating too much or as the result of gas formation, it may crowd up against the heart and the heart responds to that mechanical pressure by becoming fast.

Rapid beating of the heart may also be produced from toxic irritation. For example, when the body is in a toxic condition as the outcome of wrong habits of living, the blood will reflect the change away from the normal and as this blood passes through the heart, the latter organ will respond by becoming faster.

The acute toxemias seen in fever are also capable of causing the heart to beat too rapidly. The overuse of coffee, tea, or tobacco may likewise affect the heart rate in some individuals. When the thyroid gland is working overtime, the excess secretion of the thyroid substance will cause a very fast heart.

Colitis is another possible cause of rapid beating. In these cases, the tachycardia is reflex in nature and the action of the heart is increased through the influence of the sympathetic nervous system. Or, the heart may become faster as the result of a mild, chronic, lowgrade infection.

While stomach disturbances or disturbances in the colon are potent causes of tachycardia, the possibility of a nervous cause must not be overlooked. The symptom of a fast heart is very often found among those who are conscious of being nervous. Excitement, anger, fear, anxiety, and similar unpleasant feeling states may bring on a most noticeable racing of the heart in these patients having an underlying instability of the nervous system.

The patient who is overly conscious of the heart being rapid usually develops a fear of heart trouble. This fear may be openly admitted and talked about, or it may be repressed to a large extent; but in either case it should be faced. One of the best ways to meet it is to examine the patient thoroughly. When a careful examination shows that the heart is structurally healthy, the fear evaporates, and the patient is then free to go about his business without harboring any vision of sudden heart failure.

When the fast beating of the heart is due to stomach disturbances, the use of a better diet will often exert a quieting effect. The patient should be especially careful to avoid large meals, and also to avoid foods which cause gas. When the tachycardia is a reflex from colitis, measures which prove soothing to the irritated colon will at the same time show down the heart action.

The racing of the heart brought on by nervous influences is not easily controlled in the average case. Usually the patient must first find out what it is in his way of living which is makin him nervous and must then correct it.

What Is Your Opinion?

A great many interesting letters received by the Editor of The Bulletin are too long for publication. Our correspondents would do well to study brevity. A limit of 350 words must be insisted on.

Anti-Chamberlain

Editor, Bulletin: Chamberlain poses as the champion of democracy and credits the Munich "settlement" with "having averted a catastrophe which would have ended civilization as we have known it." All his actions are against democracy, however, as his "peace" policy of sacrificing China, Ethiopia, Spain, Austria, and Czechoslovakia has resulted in the destruction of these barriers against Fascist aggression, thus facilitating the march of conquest by war-making countries. Although the controlled press strives to imbue us with the idea the democracies are too weak to stop aggressors, the fact is Japan, Italy and Germany are already war-weary, cruelly laden with taxes to pay the enormous cost of financing war with only death notices from the front as reward for their sacrifices. As proof Fascism can be stopped, Lloyd George in a recent speech stated, "The french army is the best in Europe and the Russian army and air force the greatest in the world, and despite Britain's defence weaknesses totalitarian nations would have been crushed like eggshells." It is therefore apparent Chamberlain's "peace" policy is not in the interests of the vast majority of people as his ideology is in full accord with Nietzsche's concept of civilization based on the theory that the world should be governed by beings of the highest breed, not the common herd! Proof of this is the fact Chamberlain is so eager to check democracy that, like the Roman Emperors, he has called in the barbarians to be his tools to establish an oligarchy of intellectual aristocrats to perpetuate the "civilizing" rule of exploitation. But the betrayal of Czechoslovakia opened the eyes of millions of Britishers. As Fascist demands for British colonies will create new crises, millions more will realize that to avert catastrophes they must elect a government that really will represent and defend the honor of the British people against Fascist aggressors.

A "King of Canada"?

Editor, Bulletin: When announcing the approaching visit to Canada of His Majesty King George VI, Ottawa correspondents of the Canadian Press attached special significance to certain verbal changes in the Coronation Oath as indicating that His Majesty has assumed the title of "King of Canada," but I can find no legal authority for any such change in the title of the King.

The Royal and Parliamentary Titles Act, 1927, which was enacted by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on April 12, 1927, authorized His Majesty by Royal proclamation, issued within six months after the passing of the said Act, "to make such alteration in the style and titles then appertaining to the Crown as to His Majesty may seem fit"; and by proclamation dated May 30, 1927, His late Majesty assumed the title of "George the Fifth by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India." That title has never been changed.

On December 12, 1936, when the present King ascended the Throne, he was officially proclaimed in the Canada Gazette of that date as "George the Sixth by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India," and that continues to be His Majesty's legal title.

The oath formerly administered at Coronation services required the King to "swear to govern the people of the United Kingdom and the Dominions thereto belonging according to the statutes in parliament agreed on and to respect the laws and customs of the same."

At the recent Coronation of King George the Sixth, His Majesty in the Coronation oath was required to swear "to govern the people of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa and of your possessions and the other territories to any of them belonging or pertaining and of your Empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs."

This change in the oath, prescribed by the Act of Settlement, was made without any legal sanction, as it was alleged that it merely recited the names of the existing dominions of the British Commonwealth, and that no Act of Parliament was required to give effect to this change.

Do any of your readers know of any legal sanction whatever for the use of the term "King of Canada"?

As a consequence of the militia bill put through the House of Commons of Canada, there was organized at Montreal on November 5, 1868, les Caribiniers de Montreal (the 65th Battalion). It was, as its name implies, a rifle regiment and it wore the green of that unit of the British army, like the 2nd Queen's Own of Toronto, the 1st Prince of Wales and the 3rd Victoria Rifles of Montreal, and the 14th Princess of Wales Rifles, Kingston (at a later date). I think the 9th Battalion, les Voltigeurs de Quebec, was organized about this same date.

After the armistice and the return to Canada, the regiment built itself a handsome armory almost under the shadow of the monument of Cartier, the Father of Confederation, who urged that national defence was a necessity of nationhood. Then, in order to attract recruits and as an alternative to the discarded khaki of war service, the 65th was transformed into a fusilier regiment and now wears the scarlet of the British line.

Montreal is justly proud of its French-Canadian regiment, which is largely recruited, year by year, by lads from the school cadet corps, which are more numerous in Quebec than in any other province. It is a paradox that the least military-minded province of the Dominion is the greatest believer in military training for its boys, whose cadet corps have more than once won the Strathcona shield for cadet efficiency. There can be no doubt as to the readiness of French-Canadians to defend their country by voluntary service. Their militia regiments have always so proved.

Canadian Cattle Shipments to United States Continue to Increase

LOCAL MARKET HOLDS STEADY BEEF TRADING

Dominion Trade To U.S. Jumps 2,500 Head In Week

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—Beef cattle shipments to the United States continued to increase during the past week, amounting to 6,700 head compared with 4,200 the previous week, the Dominion department of agriculture said Friday in its weekly review. Heavier runs of cattle offered at domestic stockyards led to a mixed market trend.

On Toronto cattle market, butcher cows dropped 25 to 50 per hundredweight while steers and heifers gained 15 to 25. Some choice weighty steers sold at $6.25 per cwt. with others $5 to $6. At Montreal good steers brought $5.75 to $6.

EDMONTON PRICES STEADY

At Winnipeg best steer offerings were $5 to $5.50. Steer prices held steady at Calgary and Edmonton. Fairly good killing steers made $4 to $4.25 at Prince Albert while at Moose Jaw good killing steers sold from $4 to $4.25. Saskatoon's trade was a shade firmer while Vancouver was slow, closing 25 lower on butcher cattle.

In addition to the 6,700 head of beef cattle to the United States, the week's exports also included 242 dairy cattle and 128 calves which brought total shipments to date this year to 56,859 beef, 9,955 dairy and 41,952 calves compared with 174,427 beef, 11,047 dairy and 99,823 calves last year.

There were no exports to the United Kingdom this week. Total shipments to date are 26,928 head against 9,442. Calves at Toronto were steady at $9.50 to $10 for choice vealers. Heavy western calves brought $5 to $6.25. Montreal vealers ranged from $7 to $10 and medium vealers up to $9.50. Winnipeg's good to choice vealers at $6.50 to $5.50. Edmonton was steady while at Prince Albert good vealers topped at $5 and at Vancouver $6.

HOGS GAIN

Hogs gained 50 on a light run at Toronto, closing $8.15 to $8.25 for off truck bacons. A similar gain was made at Montreal where bacons sold at $8.25 to $8.50, fed and watered. Winnipeg's bacons sold at $6, fed and watered. Calgary and Edmonton had a top of $8.10. Prince Albert and Saskatoon $8.25 and Moose Jaw and Regina $8.35.

Toronto quoted $7.75 for good ewes and wethers delivered by rail and $7.50 off trucks. At Winnipeg the market displayed reasonably good action with good killing lambs at $6.50 to $6.75. Prince Albert topped at $5.50 while Moose Jaw was steady at $5.50 to $6 for good killers. Regina prices were $5.50 to $5.75, Saskatoon $5.85 and Vancouver $6.75.

COLD LAKE

Cold Lake Roads Are Improved as Gravel is Spread

The past two weeks has seen many of the citizens of Cold Lake at work on the local roads. Gravel has been hauled every day from the lake shore and the roads from the school corner through town are now well gravelled.

This work has been carried out as payment of taxes under the foremanship of H. Miron.

Property damages on Hallowe'en were not so great this year as previously. A few gates disappeared during the evening but a large party kept most of the older girls and boys in until too late to play their pranks.

Because of its huge areas of protected anchorage, the Port of New York is considered one of the world's finest natural harbors.

TRUSTEES FOR SCHOOLS MEET IN CONFERENCE

Insp. Schoffield Gives Address on Larger Units; Talk Follows

A representative meeting of Trustees' association was held in the Alexandra school recently when Inspector Schoffield gave an address on "The Organization and Management of the Larger School Unit."

The address was followed by a general discussion during which it was explained how the business of the new division would be conducted and what the duties of the new officers would be.

TWO DIVISIONS

Plans were considered for a reorganization of the association and it was decided to form two divisions, one for Ponoka and one for Wetaskiwin. E. E. Sparks, of Brightview, was elected president of the Wetaskiwin division and J. O. Harvey of Hillside was chosen as secretary-treasurer. The two representatives from Ponoka were named as a committee to arrange for the organization of the Ponoka division.

In the absence of John Eadie, of Rimbey, president of the association, E. E. Sparks presided at the meeting, and Fred Kaiser was secretary-treasurer.

STOCK IS PURCHASED

I. E. Colett has purchased the stock and equipment of Christie's garage and taken possession. Mr. Christie expects to leave with his family for Seattle in the near future.

THEATRE PARTY HELD

The Kiwanis club had anticipated having a huge bonfire and Hallowe'en celebration but due to unfavorable weather conditions a theatre party was held in the Audien theatre for all school children. The building was crowded and the children were presented with peanuts, balloons and apples. Prizes for the best costumes were awarded to Barbara Freeson and Agnes Vaheusen.

BOURCIER TELLS AUDIENCE HOW BRANCHES WORK

A. V. Bourcier, M.L.A., addressed a well-attended meeting in the Loyal Legion hall on the subject of "The Treasury Department." The speaker was introduced by A. Borden.

Mr. Bourcier explained that the purpose of the branch units was two-fold: that of increasing purchasing power and that of rendering the same services now rendered by the banks. Purchasing power would be increased by means of a broad public works program coupled with the three per cent bonus resulting from the purchase of Alberta made goods.

It was stated by the member that dealers in Onoway had all signed up with the exception of two and that no difficulty was expected in extending the list of signed dealers. The stamp for Alberta made goods was described in detail. Goods must meet with export standards in quality before they may be stamped.

A short question period followed, led by the local Dr. Barrow. It was revealed that there is no intention of the community kitchens being operated this year. Instead, there are two alternatives: the federal government farm laborers' scheme, and rest camps where food, clothing and shelter will be accorded the needy who cannot be placed. The camps are to be improved.

Finally, local fire fighters aired their complaints with the member. Fire fighters feel that wages are too low and that food is insufficient.

Lloydminster Arena Board Picks Officers

P. J. Marshall, J. Spencer and F. Budd were elected to the board of directors of the Lloydminster Arena Ltd. at the annual meeting. George Dunn, president, in his annual report, stated that last year the board had been able to wipe off arrears of interest on the mortgage as well as pay $150 on principal. This had been accomplished through the assistance given the board by the fraternal and service clubs.

The board will approach the town council for assistance in connecting the arena with the deep drain with a view of using the building for summer activities.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

ELKS CARNIVAL DRAWS CROWDS TO ENJOY SHOW

Local Elks' lodge sponsored a successful carnival when the biggest crowd that has ever been in Rocky Mountain House gathered here the last day, packing the curling rink to the doors. Towards the end of the evening, all cafes had to lock their doors, as they were completely cleaned out of food, never having seen such a crowd in town.

Outstanding success of the carnival was the entertainment provided by the Martin Sisters of Red Deer, whose acts of Scotch acrobatic and tap dancing packed the building. Prizes were won by Miss Betty Strong, Miss Peggy Morrison, Miss Mary Spoor and A. J. Nile.

Elks in charge of the carnival were E. G. Young, Jack Stronach, Jack Edgerton, H. Hepburn, Harry Taylor, J. A. Driscoll, E. S. Brett, Howard Burn, Gordon Sorenson, George Morrison and Melvin Reed. Funds raised will be used for Christmas cheer.

DEATH OF MRS. FERGUSON

The death occurred of Mrs. William Ferguson at the home of her niece, Mrs. E. Day.

Mrs. Ferguson, whose maiden name was Isabelle Young, was born in Kitchener, Ont., in 1884 and married William Ferguson in 1896. They moved that year to Brandon, Manitoba, where Mr. Ferguson was a prominent business man until his death ten years ago, after which Mrs. Ferguson moved to Santa Monica, California. She came here last spring to visit her nieces, Mrs. Day and Mrs. Matthew Bradshaw.

She is survived by one son, Reed Ferguson, of Beverly Hills, California, who has been here the past month during his mother's illness. The funeral will take place in Brandon. Mrs. Day and Mr. Ferguson accompanied the body east.

PARISH MARKS ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Catholic parishes recently celebrated an event—long to be remembered in the community—the silver jubilee of the ordination of Rev. Fr. Schnitzler to the Holy Priesthood.

His Grace, Archbishop MacDonald of Edmonton celebrated a Pontifical High Mass at the Spring Lake Church and 32 fellow clergy of the Archdiocese of Edmonton were in attendance. The Spring Lake and St. Peter's choirs united to chant the service.

The altar of the richly furnished church—one of the oldest around—was massed with flowers.

At 3 o'clock the group motored to St. peter's parish where the members of the St. Peters C.W.L. and parishioners held a reception in the spacious basement of the church.

In remembrance of the occasion, the St. Peter's C.W.L. presented Father Schnitzler with a hand crocheted table cloth. The Spring Lake C.W.L. gave him a bed throw.

A purse of over $100 was donated by the parish and the clergy also gave a suitable gift. Father Schnitzler has been parish priest at Spring Lake for 15 years. Camrose and Cadogan are other charges he has ministered to in Alberta.

YOUTH PROGRAM IS PROCEEDING

Interest in the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training plan is reaching proportions here which have already necesitated the transfer of the health classes to a larger floor. Classes under the leadership of T. A. Shandro are being held at 8:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays for men and Tuesdays and Thursdays for women. Even now in its fourth week of activity new members are registering every evening. To date 47 of each have registered.

The movement is being supported by the Community Welfare Association which has helped with the purchase of equipment.

DIDSBURY

CHEESE FACTORY IS BEING BUILT NEAR DIDSBURY

Work has commenced on the construction of the co-operative cheese factory which will be situated 11 miles east of town on land farmed by Tom McCaig. It is expected that the factory will be ready for operation by spring. The main building is 48 feet long by 26 feet wide and the curing room will be 16x30 feet. Henry Peters is supervising construction.

The cheese factory is modelled after one in operation at Lyndon and will employ about 18 men. The enterprise will be run on a co-operative basis, and shares are sold at $25 each. Election of a permanent board will take place in January, and the temporary board is as follows: president, John Wiebe; directors, Edward Liesemer, Henry Peters, C. Reimer, Henry Remple. Tom McCaig is treasurer.

WESTLOCK

TEACHERS HOLD JOINT MEETING TWO SECTIONS

First joint convention of Westlock and Barrhead sections of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance opened at Westlock Thursday with upwards of 80 teachers in attendance. The convention was by far the most successful of its kind ever held here.

Questions appertaining to education were discussed fully and freely. Musical festivals, school fairs, track meets were discussed and new ideas proposed for the better conduct of these activities.

At the opening session, after being welcomed by the president, M. J. V. Downey, the teachers listened to addresses by J. W. Barnett, Edmonton, provincial secretary of the A.T.A., and C. F. Hollinshead, in charge of the Barrhead inspectorate.

Mr. Hollinshead gave advice on the continuance of organization work in the larger school division which will come into operation here on January 1, 1939. The afternoon session was devoted to sectional meetings to discuss the various phases of school work, speakers being: W. Blore, Glenreagh, on "Playground Activities"; Miss G. Hall, Clyde, "Reading for Grades 1 to 3"; J. M. Tracy, Westlock, "Experimental Approach to Science," and J. W. Renwick, Sunnybank, "Social Studies in the Intermediate School."

Following the sessions a successful dance, attended by the teachers and their friends, was held in the U.F.A. hall.

Automobile wheel bearings should be lubricated at least three times a year.

FORTIN DEBT PLAN OPPOSED BY EX-MAYOR

Clarke Asserts the Scheme Monstrous Swindle—Fry Outlines Program

goods in the wholesale section. This paving is a part of the campaign to combat the dust nuisance.

Mayor Fry also promised that this winter sand, instead of cinders, would be used on sidewalks to prevent pedestrians slipping on ice-covered streets.

He again referred to the policy of oiling streets to combat dust, and stated that next year heavier oil applications, practically blotter type construction, would be put on streets.

MEETINGS ORDERLY

Second night of the civic election meetings was characterized by orderly meetings at Westmount Community hall and Alex Taylor school, with about 30 listeners in attendance at the former and 40 at the latter.

There was no heckling but candidates were subjected to a considerable barrage of question at the conclusion of their speeches, particularly at the Alex Taylor meeting, where the chairman, Jack Whitford, declared he felt questions should be put to the speakers.

QUESTION TRAM BUSINESS

Several listeners at the school meeting asked about the street railway rehabilitation plan and requested that Mayor Fry address himself particularly to that question. He complied and dealt solely with this subject at the meeting.

W. H. Thornton, C.C.F.-Labor school board candidate, was asked "why he represented two political parties when he should be non-political." He replied that the C.C.F., which he represented, believed that politics was merely "the science of government." "We admit our politics; the Citizens' Committee don't," he said.

F. J. Speed, independent mayoralty candidate, drew analogies in civic government from the Confession scene in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" at the Westmount meeting and from the Trial scene in "Merchant of Venice" at Alex Taylor. He recited with deep fervor and was listened to with rapt attention. He closed by declaring that he was a candidate who was "man enough to stand up to the money monopolists."

Mayoralty

Mayor J. W. Fry, Citizens' Committee, submitted the splendid record of achievement of council during the past year warranted his appeal for a second year of office, an appeal, he stated, which has never been denied any previous occupant of the mayor's chair for over 20 years. The record, he said, had been made possible by the co-operation of the city council, a group of men uninfluenced by any other considerations than the conducting of the city's affairs in a businesslike manner for the advancement of the interests of the city of Edmonton and its citizens.

Mayor Fry stressed that improvements totalling $125,000 had been carried out this year without adding one cent to the funded debt of the city or its interest burden. There has been a great deal of talk about interest reduction, stated the Mayor, who considered his policy of pay-as-you-go the answer to the question, an answer, he said, appreciated by people who have to pay for previous capital borrowings which brought us so close to the verge of municipal bankruptcy.

Confidence restored by this council had resulted in a 400 per cent increase in building which had given work to Edmonton's artisans and laborers. The council through an indentification card system had assured that this work would be available to Edmonton labor. From the many expressions of satisfaction received from working men and labor leaders I know that our building artisans have had one of the best years since pre-depression times.

Joseph A. Clarke, K.C., independent: I refer you to the single-handed fight which I and one or two others on city council made to reduce the mill rate from 67 mills. We finally got it down to 55 mills.

In forcing property to be forfeited for taxes, the city officials, behind my back, grabbed land and sold it away below its value. If they got any more for it than the taxes against it amounted to, they kept that amount and didn't refund any to the man who owned the house.

QUESTIONS CORPORATION

Why is this rich corporation, the C.G.A., pretending it can't afford broadcasts? Is it because they have nothing to say or because there are things they won't explain.

The city is spending thousands for a trolley bus line that will save two or three minutes for some residents on the South Side. For a few thousand they could give the outlying districts cheap little bus lines. As far as I am concerned, I will discontinue all further changes over to the trolley buses as our street car system is one of the best in any city.

The Fortin plan is an absolute swindle. Fortin told me that he would reduce the interest rates on Edmonton bonds and give us a chance to struggle along. When I had to go away for my health he reversed the whole program. You will have to pay through the nose for this monstrous swindle.

Charles Gould, Civic-Progressive: I would certainly bring business practices to bear on the conducting of Edmonton's business. A municipality to me is simply a business corporation and requires business tactics. I feel that your representation on city council has been somewhat one-sided. The moment the election is over it will be business first, last and all the time. The mill rate is uppermost in our mind and, the way things are going, I can't see any visible reduction coming. The mill rate, I am sure, could be reduced 12 mills. I firmly believe in any city owning its utilities.

Aldermanic Candidates

M. B. "Red" McColl, Citizens' Committee, stressed need of a housing scheme to provide homes for low bracket workers and provide employment for Edmonton's artisans. He outlined work done in Edmonton under the Dominion Housing act in renovating homes and converting of houses into apartments. He considered that the saturation point had been reached in the conversion of homes into flats, and was convinced there must be a directed housing plan which would give low bracket wage earners a chance to purchase their homes at reasonable cost.

Alderman Hugh John Macdonald, Citizens' Committee, said many prospective home-owners were alarmed at the increasingly high mill rate of previous years, a mill rate which was far short of meeting city's obligations, with the result that private building enterprise was stifled in the city. He expressed himself as definitely in favor of a housing program suitable to the needs of Edmonton and said there was a serious responsibility on city council to do all in its power to stimulate such a program.

He outlined the provisions of the Dominion Housing act as it applied to building loans, and asked that the most careful study be given to the housing plebiscite by the burgesses.

Alderman A. Blair Paterson, Citizens' Committee, said the policy adopted by city council during the past two years was to carry through a program of improvements payable out of revenue. In that time $225,000 had been spent on paving—two miles—the completion of the Clarke stadium; oiling of city streets and many other improvements. It is the policy of council to continue these improvements out of revenue surplusses, extending the scope as money is available. All improvements completed over the past two years have not added a single cent to the funded debt of the city, thus saving the taxpayers interest charges.

Alderman James H. Ogilvie, Citizens' Committee, stressed the necessity for the re-allocation between the various governments of public responsibilities, with a re-definition and redistribution of fields of taxation.

These changes are vitally necessary and must be undertaken immediately following the report of the Rowell Commission. The careful study of this report will be a great responsibility of the aldermen you elect this year as to them you will be entitled to look for prompt and effective action. The council for the next two years should have the assistance of a taxation research bureau in the hands of an expert on taxation.

W. "Paddy" Griffin, speaking for Sidney Parsons, Citizens' Committee, said he was proud to appear on the platform in support of Mr. Parsons, a returned soldier and a labor man of years of service in Edmonton. If elected, stated Mr. Griffin, you will have placed on the council a man intimately acquainted with the problems of the workers; a man who will give sympathetic hearing to all who need advice. Further, as a bricklayer who had held important positions in the building industry in Edmonton he will be of invaluable assistance to council in its deliberations on any housing scheme which comes before it.

Dr. R. C. Ghostley, Independent: The aldermanic situation requires a little different type of thought and action on council. If no one sacrificed anything, how was the Fortin debt postponement plan such a good thing? The thing that was sacrificed was the city's sinking fund, which was turned loose for the aldermen to spend as they saw fit. The Bank of Canada is still a member of the international banking chain and Edmonton can't get cheap money from it until its finances are in better shape.

J. W. Findlay, Labor-C.C.F.: You can only have true representation on council while you have some representatives of the people who are active in industry and fight for the workers and the principles of trade unionism. You should elect people who will bring pressure to bear to find out if the Bank of Canada is really a public institution. We should make our demands there for cheap money. We favor a housing plan and revision of the taxation system.

Elisha East, Civic-Progressive: The bond extension plan which I and others on council negotiated has a call feature, so that we can go anywhere in the world to obtain cheaper money. I would demand that the Dominion government make it possible to refund our debt at low interest, through your own bank. In the fall of 1937 the city made a gift of $24,000 to the Calgary Power Company, which would have been better spent on a little housing plan. I won't raise the rates on the street railway. We must endeavor to rehabilitate the physically fit unemployed.

M. M. Downey, Independent: I believe I am capable of handling any intricate questions which come before council. I would favor moving slowly in the matter of changing the street railway system over to a trolley bus system. I know something of road construction and street railway traffic and I would oppose any raise in fares. Taxation must be adjusted.

Margaret Crang, Civic-Progressive: You should have a woman on council. When 50 per cent of the voters are women they should not entrust the city's affairs to 11 men. We should have a reduced mill rate and I would work to have bond interest reduced to two per cent. To ease the load on the taxpayer, I feel we should give some exemption to owners of homes worth less than $5,000. We should have cheaper utility rates because they are making over $1,000,000 a year profit. I initiated and will fight to keep the five-cent carfare. I ask support for my father for school board.

H. D. Ainlay, Labor-C.C.F.: If the Citizens' Committee can take credit for the new store buildings, then Labor can take credit for the good crop and fine weather this fall. Council got the money for its paving and other work this year from the sinking fund which was saved by previous councils. Council has an agreement for a Calgary Power standby, costing $1,200 a month and $2,350 a month if service is required. No Labor man would make such an agreement. I hope the burgesses will support the building plebiscites. I would favor house building with money loaned at two per cent.

Sidney S. Bowcott, Independent: Wondered at the sudden decision of the city council to adopt a trolley bus system when hundreds of thousands of dollars had been spent on renovation of the street car lines. He deplored the appalling living conditions which had been created by the conversion of former one-family dwellings into quarters for four or five families. He charged these dwellings formerly rented for between $25 and $30 and owners were now receiving from $60 to $70 revenue from them, and in many instances this increased rental was being taxed on casual workers or persons on relief. This condition cried out for a housing scheme in Edmonton, but there was only inaction by council on this important matter. He predicted the defeat of the housing plebiscite as the persons permitted to vote on it would certainly not vote in favor of a housing scheme which would destroy the "fat" rental plums they received from their overcrowded houses at present.

W. H. Miller, C.L.P.-C.C.F.: Charged the Citizens' Committee candidates were advocating policies preached by Labor for years as the solution for the social ills of the world today. To continue in power the Citizens' Committee had placed Labor men on their slate, not because they were favorable to labor, but to get returned to power. It is high time that Labor saw to it that they placed real Labor representatives on the city council, men who have always been steadfast to true Labor principles.

Public School Board

W. G. McConachie, Citizens' Committee: Seeking election for the first time outlined his association with community leagues in the city which had given him a thorough grounding in the educational requirements of the majority of the children. He stated he could not see how free text books could be supplied to all pupils until such time as the provincial government assumed a larger share of educational costs. He considered educational facilities provided in Edmonton equalled those of any Canadian city.

Trustee F. Armour Ford, Citizens' Committee: Seeking a second term of office, said the work of the school board had been harmoniously carried out with business efficiency rather than political show. The functions of the board was to budget for requirements and spend the assessment wisely. It was the aim of the present board to keep costs as low as possible commensurate with efficient teaching services. He was of the opinion that the erection of further high school accommodation could not be delayed indefinitely, and regretted the defeat of the bylaw last summer.

Mrs. W. J. Ross, Citizens' Committee, corrected statements made by opposing candidates that the school board was not offering complete courses prescribed by the Department of Education. Everything possible within the board's financial scope has been done to install the new courses, she stated. Asking for re-election on her four-year record Mrs. Ross assured her audience she would deal fairly and conscientiously with each matter coming before the board for decision.

Mrs. Mary Gilchrist, Civic-Progressive: I favor amalgamation of the school and city health services. Appointments of teachers should be made on the basis of seniority, academic qualification and special training and on the superintendent's recommendation. There should be no lobbying of trustees. Teachers' pay cuts should be restored as they are required to maintain a certain standard of living and improve their own education through new courses and travel in order to give the most benefit to the pupils.

W. H. Thornton, C.C.F.-Labor: I have no intention of raising the mill rate to buy grade 9 text books. This year the board paid the expenses of three men to come here and be interviewed for the appointment of a physical training supervisor. The cost of this could be used next year for grade 9 texts. Cost of all the books bought last year was $4,073. This is a small part of the budget. Home owners are being taxed out of reason and a better means of meeting education costs should be arrived at.

Archibald Richardson, C. C. F.-Labor: I stand unhesitatingly in favor of the right of a full education, protection of health, provision of culture and welfare of all the children as a right prior to any debt claim. If my colleague, Mr. Thornton, and myself are elected, we will endeavor to take politics out of the school board. We stand for collective bargaining and seniority rights. The C.C.F. has the coming movement in the Dominion of Canada.

That Old Man Winter Is Here Again

The first blizzard of winter wasn't fooling when it swept across Minnesota, Wisconsin and northern Michigan, paralyzing transportation and communication. This scene, shows broken telegraph poles and wires down along the snow-covered highway. Snow was eight inches deep in some sections.

The Story Of Israel

THE BIBLE—Part IV

By GEORGE C. CRUX

Director British-Israel World Federation

Dr. Hertz, the chief rabbi in England, does not agree with those who would destroy the authenticity of the Bible by discrediting its authorship, for he states: "My conviction that the criticism of the Pentateuch associated with the name Wallhausen is a preversion of history and desecration of religion, is unshaken; likewise my refusal to eliminate the Divine either from history or from human life."

G. C. Crux

Dr. Hertz as chief rabbi has a very large following spread all over the globe and in addition to his actual followers there are millions who respect his declarations regarding the Old Testament because of his knowledge and wisdom. With the best means that this world affords for research at his disposal, he stands foursquare in support of Divine Authorship of the Pentateuch; we therefore, declare that it is highly important that every citizen should know what the rabbi is saying when he endorses these much discussed Writing of God by the hand of Moses.

In these writings we find innumerable, outstanding statements directly affecting our present day life; one of which we feel is unique. You will find it in Gen. 49:22-27. The particular statement being that Ephraim (as inheritor of the birthright) is the guardian of the stone of Israel. That stone is today in Westminster Abbey and played a very great part in the recent coronation of His Majesty King George VI.

STONE REMOVED

Ephraim, through Joseph, having been made the custodian of that stone, does it not occur to you that Ephraim is on the job, near enough to the stone to take care of it? During the World War this stone was removed from its accustomed place in Westminster Abbey to a place secure from destruction by aerial bombs. Some one was acting as guardian of that ancient treasure and we are convinced from history and Scripture that it was none other than Ephraim.

If you will search the Scriptures for the identification marks of Ephraim you will find that these marks are present in England. One outstanding mark which you see almost every day is the unicorn. It is pacifically an emblem of Ephraim; the others are just as definite and are there for your examination if you look for them.

THRONE SHALL STAND

The Bible definitely states upon the vow of Almighty God that the Throne of David shall stand continuously throughout all time. Our scholars say that is error. Our preachers tell us that we must spiritualize God's vow. But the Bible is so definite that it will not permit of error or of spiritualization and therefore, we are faced with the same alternative that Dr. Driver was faced with when he (believing the Jew to be Israel) stated that God had failed to keep His promise to His people. Facing this problem we must recognize Israel to see the truth of the Scriptures.

One very helpful book in tracing the Throne of David and the Stone of Israel is "Tamar Tephi or the Maid of Destiny" by John Dunham Massey. In this book on page 65, he makes the following statement: "In the process of time the good and beautiful Queen Tamar of Tea Tephi died, loved and venerated by all Ireland. She was buried in the Hill of Tara in a large tomb or repository, sixty feet square, now covered with a huge mound; and with her was buried the large mysterious chest or case, and its equally mystical contents, which was brought to Ireland on her arrival in that country, and which she directed should be interred with her."

HISTORIC RECORD

Tamar Tephi was the daughter of Zedekiah, the last King of the Davidic line to sit on the throne in Jerusalem. After the fall of Jerusalem at that time, the Bible concludes its historic record of the throne and the personnel of its occupants with the account of the death by execution of Zedekiah's sons, his own death and the deposition of his daughters together with the royal equipment by Nebuchadnezzar placing them in the custody of Jeremiah the prophet. The record continues into Egypt but leaves the prophet and the King's daughter in Taphanes, Egypt.

It is significant, however, that Jeremiah's mission given direct from God and recorded in the first chapter of the book bearing the prophet's name, was not only to "tear down and to destroy" but also to "plant and to build."

LOOK ELSEWHERE

Up to the time of the last record of the prophet's activities recorded in the Bible he had not accomplished any portion of the second half of his mission "to plant and to build." We must therefore, look elsewhere for the record of this portion of his life work; we find it gloriously set forth in the early history of Ireland. But—sad to relate—our scholars of the day discount this history and refuse to accept it even though it is substantiated by more complete evidence than the greater portion of early history which they do accept.

It would appear that they refuse to accept the early history of Ireland because it disrupts their own ideas as to what became of Israel and the Davidic line and throne. For the comfort of such we quote the first two verses of Ode 44 of the book of Isaiah found in chapter 29, verses 13 and 14, Ferrar Fenton translation.

"Now the Almighty demands,
Why do this people approach
With their mouth and their lips,
To pay honour to Me,
While their heart is far off?
Their reverence is worthless to Me:—
It teaches the doctrines of men:
"So on this Race I lay wonders,
Add wonders to wonders,
Destroying its scientists' science,
And bafflin, its scholars' research."

This book, the Bible is matchless and outwits its enemies and baffles those who would destroy it. It is our guide out of these troublesome days.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH PROPERTY NOW IN QUESTION

British United Press, Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

VIENNA, Oct. 22—An article entitled "Rich Church, Poor People," in the German Nazi party newspaper organ has aroused speculation as to the future of Roman Catholic church property in Austria. The article was linked with the expulsion by the Nazi secret police of Franciscan monks who had occupied a monastery at Salzburg for 150 years.

The building was owned by the state. The monks refused to give it up and the secret police, it was learned, compelled them to leave Oct. 12. It was reported that the Monks intended to appeal to the civil courts, asserting that they had squatters' rights and that they would demand more compensation than the government has offered for ejecting them on brief notice.

Since the Catholic church holds huge properties in Austria, the Nazi newspaper articles, published in the Voelkischer Beobachter, and the Salzburg incident were interpreted in some quarters as preparation for a large scale sequestration of church property.

It was reported that Catholic tailors were enjoying a boom in orders from theological students and priests for lay clothing for use outside their diocese and schools, because they had been exposed to insults and physical violence by rioters.

SCOTCH CHURCH GIVES BUILDING

The Church of Scotland gave the use of their building at the Empire Exhibition to broadcast a Methodist service. The singing was led by a Methodist choir and the address by Rev. Harold G. Fiddick, chairman of the Methodist church in Scotland. In an appeal to the British churches on behalf of the war-affected areas in China it is stated that out of a population of 182,000,000, there are 30,000,000 who have fled from their homes. Gifts are being forwarded through the missionaries in their fields. While the Archbishop of Canterbury was passing out through the lobby of the House of Commons on that excited Wednesday, Sept. 28, several members took his armm saying: "This is the Hand of God." The scene was fimiliar in London, particularly, of long queues outside the various depots where the people were being measured for their gas masks. Diagrams also were printed showing how emergency trenches could be made in the gardens—sand bags, stout timbers and corrugated iron roofs being recommended. We quote from one: "The trench should be at least 20 feet from the house and will provide excellent protection against blast and splinters from high explosive bombs."

COLLECTION OF BIBLES SHOWN

At the celebration in London, Eng., of the 400th anniversary of the English Bible there is to be a collection of Bibles which belonged to noted preachers. Among them are a Dr. Joseph Parker Bible and a Spurgeon Bible. One of the most interesting belonging to Dr. Dinsdale T. Young, of Westminster Central Hall, London, the old-fashioned Methodist preacher, who was in the pulpit before he entered his 'teens. In this Bible there is an entry of the number of times that great expounder of Holy Scripture had "read it through." On October, 1937, shortly before his death, it is recorded that he had completed the reading for the 88th time.

The See of Armagh in the Church of Ireland is again vacant. Dr. John Godfrey FitzMaurice Day was elected archbishop and successor to Archbishop D'Arcy on June 9, 1938. He died recently in a nursing home in Dublin at the age of 64. His father was also a bishop and he was educated at Cambridge and Ridley Hall. Early in his ministry he went to India as a member of the Cambridge University Mission. He spent seven years in Delhi and on returning to Dublin was appointed professor of pastoral theology at Trinity college and select preacher. In 1920 he was consecrated Bishop of Ossory.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science Churches next Sunday, the object of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Adam and Fallen Man." One of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon is Genesis 3:24, "So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life." One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is: "Radiant with mercy and justice, the sword of Truth gleams afar and indicates the infinite distance between Truth and error, between the material and spiritual,—the unreal and the real" (p. 538).

Long Unused Plants To Be Reopened United States Rearmament Plan

ROOSEVELT GETS ACTIVE FOR DEFENCE

Magnitude Of America's Program Disclosed By President's Address

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—The magnitude of the United States' effort to re-arm swiftly in a troubled world was emphasized Thursday with disclosures long-unused arms plants are to be reopened and steps taken to cut down delays in construction of warshihps.

President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, N.Y., made known a $22,000,000 Great War ordnance plant at South Charleston, W.Va., would be reopened and devoted to a secret purpose, and that the New Orleans navy yard would be used again after being inoperative since 1921.

These steps, Mr. Roosevelt said, are part of a general program of utilizing disused, government-owned land and plants, so far as possible in the rearmament program, instead of buying private property for the purpose. This, Mr. Roosevelt said, would mean a large saving for the government.

Mr. Roosevelt said the government was striving to reduce the time that elapses between appropriations for warships and completion of construction. A major reason for these delays, he said, is the fact designs have rapidly changed during the construction of ships.

COPPER CATCHES BOY FLATFOOTED

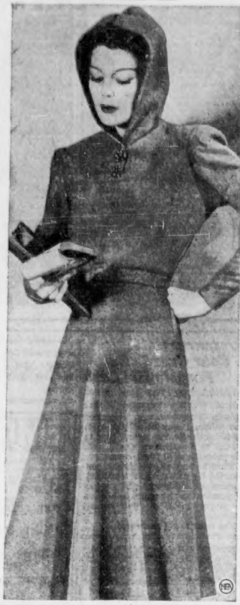
DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—One of a passing group of youths yelled, "Hey, there, flatfoot," to Patrolman Martin Brightman.

Brightman promptly ordered the jibing youth to remove his shoe. The youth's foot was level from toe to heel when he placed it on the sidewalk.

Then the patrolman removed his own shoe and displayed a curved arch.

The youth's face reddened as his companions turned to him and cried: "Hey, there, flatfoot."

Modern Riding Hood



Although designed primarily for college girls, this smart wool jersey dress with a hood which can be worn up as shown, or down to form a soft shawl collar, is ideal for any woman to wear autumn week-ends in the country or in an open roadster. The jersey is soft as an angora kitten. Twisted metal buttons and cleverly concealed pockets are the only trimming. The hood is formed by closing the slide fastener up the centre of the two-part collar.

Work For Everyone

By Nellie McClung

(Copyright Reserved)

UNFORTUNATELY we cannot live on last year's doughnuts! Life moves on and we have to go with it. It is a spring, not a cistern. We cannot even make up our minds and be sure they will stay made up! Fresh evidence is always coming in which may change the verdict! Now, for years I believed with deep conviction that if people knew each other better, they would love each other more. There was a lovely old hymn we used to sing about the mists rolling away, leaving the whole landscape of life bright and fair:

> "We shall know as we are known
> Never more to walk alone
> In the dawning of the morning
> When the mists have rolled away."

I have had to abandon this comforting theory. Think of Spain! They know each other; they speak the same language; belong to the same country; same tradition and sometimes the same family. But they kill each other.

UNDERSTANDING

So that is gone! It takes more than knowledge to make people live together in peace! It takes understanding, imagination and love. In the League of Nations Assembly we heard much of "intellectual co-operation." It has a department devoted to it. It seems to cover all ways and means of making one country really known to another. Newspapers, radio, films, surveys, visitors, conversations and reports are called into its service. Indeed the whole object of the League might be expressed by this phrase.

The League was called into being when the thought in the mind of the world at the close of the Great War was: "This must never happen again!" The people who framed the Covenant of the League believed in its passionately. They believed that by binding themselves together they could hold any aggressor in check. They could discipline the unruly if moral suasion failed. Fortunately there were no aggressors for some years and the League reached out its kind and skilful hands to heal some of the sore places in the lives of its people.

DEADLY TOLL

It saw the drug traffic taking its deadly toll; it saw malnutrition and bad housing, cruel prison conditions, child exploitation and the white slave traffic; and so machinery was set up to cope with these evils. Experts were found or trained and the work has gone on quietly and efficiently. There are many problems that concern all the world and no one country can possibly deal with such, so we are all dependent on, and grateful to, the League for its seeing eye and its protecting hands.

I have been reading one of the League's preliminary reports on refugees, a big, closely printed book, packed with information concerning these helpless people who are forced to leave their homes, robbed, beaten and banished. Fortunately there are generous and public-spirited societies working with the League to mitigate the lot of these victims, but the need goes far beyond their means.

NOT WIDELY READ

I wished, as I read the big book, that every one could know these facts but the reports are not widely read . . . even League reports. We are a little bit inclined to take the isolationist attitude here in Canada and think a refugee is something that does not concern us. He is probably darker skinned than we are; is no doubt dirty by this time; and, worse still, may not speak our tongue. So there is not much that we can do. But, just as I was battling with this and wondering how to make our people see that they must concern themselves with international questions, I picked up a Montreal evening paper and on the editorial page I read a story which evidently had burned into the writer's heart.

It was the story of a party of refugees who found sanctuary on a raft on the Danube river; the beautiful blue Danube which, to many Canadians, is not a river at all but a waltz. They had been forced to flee from their homes. They have no country now — home, business, money gone! In an arm of the Danube they moored their raft. But this part of the river runs through a country which is also unfriendly to people of their race — so the cables which have moored the raft are to be cut and the barge will drift on down the river! This story tells in its few words, the plight of many European Jews and it will be read by thousands. This newspaper is serving humanity by "intellectual co-operation." One picture, such as this, is of more value than many statistics.

FIRST INTIMATION

When the BBC had a translator give Mr. Chamberlain's speech in German, at the time of the crisis, and also President Roosevelt's message, it reached the German people and, to many, was their first intimation of how the world felt to them. They did not know that the row with Czechoslovakia might mean a world war. That aspect had been withheld from them. But fortunately no one can put an entirely successful ban on the air. So the German people heard a voice speaking in their own tongue from London, and evidently it registered.

This matter of "intellectual cooperation" has unlimited possibilities now, with the press, the radio, the films and the printed and spoken word. It needs just one thing—people with vision and courage! and enough of them! Every traveller, every visitor, every letter that is written, every talker in every conversation, can contribute something that is constructive and informing! We can all belong to the Intellectual Co-operation branch of the human family.

Theft Of 40,000 Chickens Charged Missouri Couple

BUTLER, Mo., Nov. 5.—Frank Spencer, 44, a restaurant proprietor, and his 198-pound wife, Mrs. Ethel Spencer, 30, were charged recently with the theft of more than 40,000 chickens valued at $18,000.

Bates county authorities who arrested the couple said that at least one chickenhouse had been raided within an area of 100 miles, every night for the past eight months.

Unity Group

INNISFAIL, Alta., Nov. 5—Formation of the Innisfail Constituency Unity Association with the object of supporting a candidate on a non-party basis at the next provincial general election, was completed here Thursday. C. D. Murphy of Innisfail was elected president.

"Our bidding was:

North	East	South	West
3 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

"My partner, North, claims that my four heart bid was a shutout bid, at game. I differ with him and say the bidding should have been as follows:

North	East	South	West
3 clubs	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

"C. P. and J. R.,
"East Boston, Mass."

This is a typical bridge tempest in a teapot. Since six clubs or six hearts was absolutely cold, both partners took it for granted that a slam contract should have been reached. As general logic, this view is unimpeachable, but unfortunately, although 90 per cent of bridge bidding is based on sheer logic, the other 10 per cent gives us plenty of trouble, and this hand belongs to the 10 per cent. (Why is it that minority groups always are so darned unmanageable?) The fact is that the North-South hands cannot be bid to a slam unless asking bids are called into use. Without this aid there is no earthly way for North to tell that his diamond void will produce the slam, whereas a spade void, with two diamonds would be worthless. Conversely, there is no way for South to tell that North is void in diamonds. I realize that my correspondent proposes to clarify this issue by bidding five diamonds over four hearts, but may I point out that this is a very risky procedure? North cannot be certain that he will be safe at even five clubs. Four hearts may easily be the limit of the combined hands. Hence, if North bids five diamonds, he is committing himself either to five hearts or to six clubs. Of course, we can get around this difficulty by having South bid only three hearts in response to North's three clubs, but here again I find an objection! Everything being equal, North's opening bid should be not three, but four clubs. He cannot possibly tell that a three club bid is desirable, in that it will allow slam investigation, with cue bids, etc. From North's original point of view, a sheer shutout appears much more in order.

I want to take this occasion to point out that many freakish hands render logical slam bidding impossible. As I have said time and again, all worthwhile bidding systems are devised to take care of the 90 per cent majority of deals. We cannot have our cake and eat it too, which is to say that we cannot stick to simple, easily remembered bidding conventions and yet hope to conquer every weird distribution that comes along.

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of this paper, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

PEPPER BOX AUTO MYSTERY SOLVED

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The hole truth got Alonzo Jeffries, 35-year-old Negro, out of a jam with the police yesterday.

Radio patrolmen acting on a telephone tip that a bullet-riddled automobile was heading downtown, seized Jeffries when his car was seen to answer the tipster's description. The Jeffries car was full of holes, neat little round holes.

"Them's not bullet holes," snorted Jeffries. "My wife knocked those holes with a hammer. She said if the car didn't look so well, maybe the girls wouldn't pay so much attention to me."

So the officers let Jeffries go—home to his wife.

Pierced Heart

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 5.—Armed with a long horsewhip with wire attached to the end, a native flicked it over oxen he was driving and on the rebound the wire pierced his heart. He died almost immediately.

All's Quiet Down On Daane's Farm: Everybody In Bed

SHEBOYGAN FALLS, Wis., Nov. 5—Everything was peaceful down on the Daane farm today. They were all in bed.

James Daane was recovering from severe head injuries. He jumped from his wagon, landed on a moving silage conveyer and was thrown against a tractor.

Howard Daane, his son, started down from the silo to help. A rung in the ladder broke and he almost dislocated his shoulder in the fall.

The team of horses ran off in fright and jumped a fence. The wagon was overturned and damaged.

Mrs. James Daane, recuperating from an appendicitis operation, painfully arose to find out about the commotion. Due to the effect and worry, she had a relapse.

Fortune Realized As Truck Stalls

KALGOORLIE, Australia, Nov. 5—A dilapidated truck that cost F. J. Pass $60 brought him a fortune. The truck stalled and while repairing it Pass picked up a lump of gold-bearing quartz. Pass staked a claim near the spot and shortly thereafter the Goldfields Australian Development company took out a $60,000 option on his land

What's New On The . . . RECORDS

BEING A REVIEW OF THE BEST NOW BEING TRANSCRIBED FOR GRAMOPHONES

By JOHN OLIVER

Music new and music old and all performed by outstanding artists and with a backing of the best that engineering brains can produce, all find a place in the latest parcel of RCA-Victor records to hand.

From out of the mist of the past come two numbers which find a place on one double-sided Red Seal record. On one side is the Lament from Purcell's Dido and Aenas; after an orchestral transcription of the work by Charles O'Connell and an Ave Maria by the almost forgotten composer Arcadelt, edited by Harl McDonald.

The Lament is sung by the Choral Society of the University of Pennsylvania, with Elsie MacFarlane as soloist and Harl McDonald as conductor. It is unaccompanied. The second is sung by the same choral society, unaccompanied.

STILL VITAL

Here is music, centuries old, filled with a spirit unhappily missing from much present day life and for that reason a sweet and calm relief is given from the troubles and vicissitudes of the present.

The Lament is one of the most perfectly formed and beautiful songs ever written. It happens to be in the form of a miniature passacaglia, a fact which need not intrude upon the enjoyment of the number, but which lends a curious symmetry and roundness to it. Dr. Harl McDonald, whose search for beautiful and rare music is unending and which already has produced a number of outstanding Victor recordings, adapted the choral parts of this record from Charles O'Connell's orchestral transcription.

DUPLICATES HORN

The solo voice, which is the contralto of Elsie MacFarlane, is a duplicate of the part assigned to the English horn in the orchestral transcription. The choral effects worked out by Dr. McDonald are strikingly beautiful.

On the other side of the record is a 16th century Ave Maria, replete with an elusive quality of spirituality difficult to describe, but easy to sense. It is one of the most compellingly beautiful pieces of religious music in existence.

For Quick Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Splendid Results. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll never know how quickly and easily you can overcome a bad winter cough, until you try this well known recipe. It gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money and you'll find it very pleasant and dependable, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup and you have 16 ounces of medicine that will surprise you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a severe cough. For real results, you'll say it's splendid. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you perfectly.

Major and Minor Notes

By JOHN OLIVER

Chief interest in musical circles next week will be focussed on the visit of the Don Cossacks Choir, under the direction of Serge Jaroff, their appearance taking place at the Empire theatre on Wednesday next. This will be the fourth visit to this city of the famous Singing Horsemen of the Steppes and each occasion has added new laurels to their wreath.

Avenir Nizoff, pianist and composer, whose compositions now have reached Opus 50, will appear in recital on November 15. A recital by Mr. Nizoff is always a matter of interest. He has forwarded a copy of his latest literary work, a handbook to musical form, which gives concisely and clearly the essentials of form. This little book, modest in conception and production, contains much valuable information and will serve as an admirable introduction to more extended works on the same subject.

Henry Atack, organist and choirmaster of First Presbyterian church, is considering presentation of Handel's oratorio, Samson, in the not too distant future. He has already directed the great work on one occasion here. Should he finally decide to present it, Mr. Atack plans to use members of his choir as soloists. It is likely the oratorio would be given the benefit of both orchestral and organ accompaniment.

That magnificent orchestra of virtuosi, with every man a soloist in his own right, the New York Philharmonic Symphony, is away to its ninety-seventh season in exceptionally fine style. Standing room only has been available at some of the concerts and all have been largely attended. Although this orchestra is now in its ninety-seventh season and is the patriarch of United States orchestras, it does not shut its doors to youth. In fact youth is given every chance with the Philharmonic, providing youth can deliver the goods.

John Barbirolli, the brilliant young English conductor of the orchestra, is just 39 and this season, seven new players appear in the orchestra, the oldest of which is a violist of 41 and the youngest a violinist of 18. At the same time men are playing in the orchestra who have been with it since the turn of the century. Mishel Piastro, the concertmaster, has been in his present post since 1931, and Joseph Shuster, the first cellist, is in his second season. Other first chair men such as Bruno Labate, first oboe; Simeon Bellison, first clarinet; Zoltan Kurthy, first violist; Harry Glantz, first trumpet; Mario Falcone, first trombone, and others, have been with the orchestra for a long time.

This orchestra stands unsurpassed among the great orchestral bodies of the world and its concerts every Sunday, brought to the home by the CBC are events in the lives of millions of music lovers the world over.

Samuel Chotzinoff is commentator of the Saturday night concerts over the CBC by the NBC symphony orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini. Chotzinoff, who is musical consultant of NBC, was given the assignment of going to Milan to try and interest Toscanini in coming to this side to conduct the orchestra, then in prospect of formation. After thinking he had failed, Chotzinoff succeeded, but Toscanini specified that the orchestra must equal the best in the U.S. Chotzinoff, a brilliant pianist, has been accompanist to well known artists and is a former music critic of the old New York World, having succeeded in that post, none other than Deems Taylor, who incidentally is a commentator of the Philharmonic broadcast and musical consultant to the Columbia system.

Recital at the Empire theatre on Nov. 18, by Knight MacGregor, baritone, former resident of this city, which will be sponsored by the Edmonton Rotary club, promises to be an event of outstanding merit in the current season. Mr. MacGregor has progressed far since he was a resident here and his success in Blossom Time, in which he played the role of Schubert is still fresh in music lovers' minds. He is assured of a warm welcome here.

A new violin star burst forth at Carnegie Hall, New York on Friday night in the person of 17-year-old Robert Virovai, of Hungary. He played the Vieuxtempts D Minor Violin Concerto. Unknown when he walked on the platform facing what is considered the greatest orchestra of them all and an audience which jammed the auditorium, he walked off with the shouts of 'bravo' and other acclamations in his ears. After taking a dozen encores, he rushed to the dressing room to tell John Barbirolli, the conductor, what a beautiful accompaniment the mighty philharmonic had given to the work.

Acting has become more important to opera than ever before. In "Martha"—forthcoming production of the Edmonton Civic Opera Society—acting has reached a new peak of perfection. Mr. John Rule has worked hard to iron out the stiffness so common in amateur theatricals. The results of his efforts are well shown in the free and grateful flow of acting throughout the production. Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, musical director for "Martha" has just released the names of the leading members of the cast for each performance. They are as follows:

Friday and Saturday afternoon: Martha, Eleanor McPhee; Nancy, Irene Perree Stirton; Lionel, William Smith; Plunkett, Philip Knowles; Sir Tristran, Leonard Jordan; Mickleford Sherriff, George Perring.

Saturday evening: Martha, Ethel McIntosh; Nancy, Nan Stott; Lionel, Joseph Rocke; Plunkett, Ken McLaren; Sir Tristran, Len Jordan; Mickleford Sherriff, George Perring.

In addition there is a chorus of 65 voices.

Tickets may be obtained from every member of the cast or by sending your mail order to the Empire Theatre in Edmonton. Now on sale at Heintzman's, Lodge Piano House or Empire Theatre.

Beavers were extinct in Illinois and wild turkey in Wisconsin, so the U. S. Forestry Service engineered a trade: a truckload of turkeys for a truckload of beavers.

Treasurer Gets Four Guards But Forgets His Cash

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 5. — Adams Weigart, treasurer of the Lincoln Fire company, requested and obtained a guard of four state motor policemen to escort him to a bank to deposit more than $1,000, the proceeds of a band concert.

When he arrived at the bank, surrounded by policemen, Weigart discovered he had brought only a bag of pennies, leaving $1,000 in bills on a picnic table at the concert grounds.

The money was recovered.

Bulletin's Photographer Brings Pictures Of Royalty From Here And There

In preference to attending a formal opening of the new block of the Great Ormond Street Children's hospital in London, the King and Queen made a tour of the hospital, chatting with the boys and girls confined there. In the above picture the King and Queen are seen chatting with Arthur Barnes, 6, an inmate of the Peter Pan ward. Notice how the Queen, never too busy to speak to her subjects, no matter how young or humble, is leaning towards the little fellow, who shyly looks at her smiling face. Early next summer the King and Queen will visit Edmonton and the boys and girls of this city will be able to actually see a ruling King and Queen for the first time. Not all kings and queens are grown up people, however. The boy in the second picture is the world's youngest king. He is 14-year-old King Anada Mahidol of Siam. In the above picture he is seen chatting with M. Graux, prefect of police at Marseilles, in the south of France, just before the young king boarded the ship which is now carrying him to Bangkok, his home. He has been attending schools in Europe, for kings, like other boys and girls, must go to school.

Scout Doings

ST. FAITH'S SECOND

St. Faith's 2nd Troop Boy Scouts opened the fall session with a new and heavy program. September and October were devoted to reorganizing the troop and the patrols and the appointment of new patrol leaders. Several new recruits were admitted to the troop, and much time was spent on the tenderfoot work. Outside work consisted of taking part in the hunt for the little girl found drowned in the river, also two football games with the Sixth Holy Trinity Troop, the latter winning both games by a small margin. Sports Day was held on Saturday, October 22, and Saturday, October 29.

A good percentage of the members were successful in passing all the tests, Major H. Kennedy acting as official examiner.

On Thursday, October 27, the troop held a Hallowe'en party, prizes being awarded. Frank Gawthorn, of the Chipmunk patrol, drew first prize with a make-up of a young lady; Jim Cooper, Chipmunks, second with the make-up of a baby; Toymn Jones, Chipmunk, third place as a wild cannibal; Bob McPhie, of the Fox patrol, lifted fourth prize with a make-up of a pirate.

November and December will be based on the second class work and all efforts will be put into this test to make all troop members full second class Scouts before the end of the year, after which much time will be spent on the first class work, and then on to the King's Scouts.

The efficiency record kept by Scoutmaster W. Frost proves to be a great help in the encouragement of Scout work, and all the troop members are working hard to gain first place for the grand prize to be given in July, 1939. First prize is a motor trip to the United States, and the second prize is ten days at a Scout camp in Alberta free of charge.

A troop toy shop is planned for this Christmas season. Troop members will be busy in December gathering toys and repairing them for the needy families in St. Faith's parish, some 125 toys being distributed last year, and it is hoped to double this figure this Christmas.

The annual Father and Son banquet, billed for Thursday, November 24, is being looked forward to by all troop members. The program will consist of patrol entertainment, some of which will be competing for the entertainer's badge. In conjunction with the manquet, a draw will be held to raise funds for troop equipment.

"Nulli Secundus," the troop's own paper, is still an outstanding feature among the troop's activities, with almost a new staff this season; the last issue proved that the new reporters are doing their duty as Scouts. Great credit is given to the scoutmaster, W. Frost, Assistant Scoutmaster C. Lashbrook, and editor of Nulli Secundus, D. Quinlan, for the success of the troop.

EDMONTON SIXTH

The Sixth Troop Boy Scouts have been working hard training a dozen recruits, made up of Cubs who have come up, and other boys who have joined the troop.

Last Saturday there was a hike for Scouts who wished to pass the first and second class cooking tests. Harry Gerard, Jack La Rose and Paul Greenwood, Jr., passed their second class cooking, while John Crook and Harold Bryant completed their first class test.

Last Tuesday night, Frank La Rose, Norman Whyte, and Paul Greenwood, Jr., were invested into the Boy Scouts.

The troop is planning a troop concert led by Mitchell Scott. It will be held in the near future.

Art Woodland, troop leader, was made assistant scoutmaster.

The Sixth Troop hopes to have some competition in hockey this winter. So come on, you other troops, oil up your skates and shake the moth balls out of the sweaters.

Varsity Varieties

By PERCY POWERS

Last week the lack of spirit and enthusiasm among students at the university was reported, and apparently accepted by the students with their usual shrug of the shoulders. However there was one pop gun leveled and fired at the writer. The junior law students deciding that the article was correct, with only one exception, that of their own organization.

In view of their activity in the past few weeks, their claim may be substantiated, for they have at least provided a laugh, and a little excitement for some of the students.

Since the self-appointed seclusion of the Engineering Students' Society, the "Lexnova Club" comprised of junior law students, is gradually taking the limelight in campus atrocities, their main aversion being the senior law students, who usually look upon them with disdain.

This energetic group post a daily "newspaper" on the blackboard every morning at 8:15 a.m., before the opening of the first lecture, the paper being edited several times during the day, and is couched with retaliating disdain for their upper classmen.

At the present time the club will pay a reward of 25 cents to any comer that can produce a pair of pants belonging to a senior law student. The desire for such a prize became so imperative the other day that a number of students in each class engaged in a little skirmish, which was ended by the reading of the Riot Act, after which both factions returned to their respective libraries and resumed studies.

Residents of the north wing of Assiniboia Hall also were entertained for a half an hour the other evening, when time-honored "tubbing" took an about face, with freshmen doing the "tubbing" and senior students being the "tubbed".

A number of senior students decided that it was about time some of the cocky freshmen on a lower floor were shown some of the finer things of college life, but unfortunately the freshmen learned of their fate. Hastily mustering their forces, the freshmen removed as many of their clothes as society decrees proper and waited for the siege. It came soon, the two factions meeting on the stairs. After a short exchange of ju-jitsu and wrestling holds, the freshmen retired with six captive seniors. The hostages were then taken to the shower room and duly treated. To make the evening like a perfect piece of fiction, the story didn't end with the mere "tubbing" of the first few.

Straining at the door were two groups of seniors, those inside trying to get out, and those outside trying to get in. Every time the door opened the freshmen conveniently arranged that one senior went out, and two came in. It didn't last long, but most participants and on-lookers were satisfied that the place wasn't entirely "dead". Since that time, all has been quiet on the North Assiniboia front.

One other news item that proved amusing in a smug way concerned the "he-man" engineers, former trouble-lovers of the campus. Tea was served "around fourish" at their last meeting.

Boy Scouts Are Hosts At Party

A crowd of some 50 young people attended a Hallowe'en party in the parish hall at Westlock when the First Westlock Troop of Boy Scouts were hosts to the Westlock C.G.I.T.

The evening passed quickly and pleasantly with games of all kinds from the inevitable apple ducking to the no less interesting "scavenger hunt," winners in the latter event being Arthur Weist and Beth McCullough. The function was a success in every way and closed with the Scouts being penned in by the girls while the latter announced in a variety of tones and keys that "they were jolly good fellows"—an honor which they returned by three hearty Scout cheers for their guests.

Alice Baril Is Best Dressed At Bonnyville

BONNYVILLE.—Miss Alice Baril was judged the best dressed Guide in attendance at the Bonnyville company of the Girl Guides' Hallowe'en masquerade party held this week. Miss Baril was disguised as a Japanese girl and her costume and make-up were perfect.

This first Bonnyville company of Girl Guides was formed in March of this year with the following executive in charge: President, Mrs. D. C. Fender; vice-president, Mrs. B. G. Dessureau; secretary, Mrs. F. Lambert; treasurer, Mrs. J. Demers, and Mrs. Reddick and Mrs. Turcotte as members of the executive. Captain of the Guides is Miss B. Mathieu, teacher at the Bonnyville high school; lieutenant is Miss L. Baril.

Five patrols have been formed since and a total of 40 Guides will be received some time in November. The patrols with their respective leaders follow: Poppy, Eileen Kirkwood; Forget-Me-Not, Alice Baril; Red Rose, Jeanne Ouimet; Daffodil, Helen Reddick; The Swallow, Theresa Vallee.

Among the company's proudest achievements is a week of camping at Moose Lake last summer. Fishing, swimming, hikes and a strict regime sent the girls home in better health and high spirits.

The Guides are planning a busy winter season and are at the present organizing a big concert, open to the public, in the early part of December.

Benton Valley Party Success

The C.G.I.T. group of Benton sponsored a very successful Hallowe'en party in the Benton Valley Community hall on October 28. Miss Helen Aikens, leader, was assisted by a committee consisting of Misses Eileen Landon, Patricia Ford and Helen Beesplug. A hundred guests assembled from Benton, Acadia Valley and Sibbald. Those who did not wear a masquerade costume were required to pay forfeits.

Prizes were given for the best costumes. In a spooky booth on the stage, fortunes were told by Ernie Pittman, disguised as an itinerant fortune teller. Mrs. Walter Cresswell was at the piano, while Miss Aikens led the community singing. Many exciting games were played after delicious lunch was served.

Rosalind Youth Wins High Prize At Camrose Show

At a recent meeting of the Camrose Barley and Flax Junior Grain Club which was held in Camrose, Stanley Gould, 17, a pupil of Rosalind high school won first place in the standing crop in the barley club.

He had the highest score in the province, namely 95.5 out of 100.

He won second place in seed sample for barley, third place in standing crop for flax, second place in seed sample for flax and obtained a perfect score in the judging competition. Stanley has won honors from time to time in stock exhibits and won the Agricultural Scholarship at Vermilion last year at the School Fair.

Season's Parties Begin at Camrose

CAMROSE. — First high school party this year was held in the high school auditorium recently. The hall was decorated by the committee and a hugh crowd assembled. Music for dancing was furnished by the school orchestra and refreshments were served.

Parents of the "Hi" students were there as well as Principal J. W. E. Markle and his staff of teachers.

A like party is to be held every two weeks throughout the winter.

Sports such as basketball and rugby have been going well and it is possible that the Camrose "Hi" will field a good hockey team this year again.

Up To The Minute!

Edmonton High School Students Are Bulletin Correspondents

ST. MARY'S HIGH

By Mary House

Preceded by the usual speeches and promises, the elections were held last week at St. Mary's High school. Competition waxed hot and caused greater interest in the elections this year than ever before. After a close ballot, the following were chosen:

President, Gertie Kehoe; vice-president, Mary Scullion; secretary, Mary House; treasurer, Anna Neilson.

The room representatives are: Doris Graham, Grade 12; Marjorie Graham, Grade 11; Josephine Dunnigan, Grade 10.

The social activities of the season began with a Lit., which was held in the school gym. on Friday, October 28. The program proved extremely entertaining and a highlight was the singing of Violet Camillo, recent winner of the Bulletin "Search for Talent" contest. A comedy was presented by the Grade 10 Dramatic club. Other contributions to the program were songs by Helen Vaugeois and Margaret Robertson. A gala afternoon was concluded with games and the much-anticipated refreshments.

Weekly meetings are being held by the executive and plans are being made for the first edition of the school paper. Margaret Crowe is to be editor.

We hope to be able to enter the girls' High School Bowling League this year and participate in the games with other schools.

Basketball practices are being held regularly and the girls are eagerly looking forward to their first game. As there is to be a girls' city league this year, the girls have formed a house league and it looks as though there will be strong competition among the different teams.

Another sport item which has been much discussed is a volley ball team which is to begin as soon as possible.

LLANARTHNEY SCHOOL

By Weber and Hill

Our magazine, "Torch," has as its new editor this year Eleanor MacKay, with Jean Fairbairn assistant and Eileen Hill business manager.

On Friday night at Llanarthney all was set for the yearly Hallowe'en party. Ghosts, spirits, witches, even "Spooks," our new cat, wandered the halls.

Monday afternoon the girls from Oliver school had a match with our girls which turned out to be a minor rugby game instead of basketball. Final score, 34-7 (Oliver).

VICTORIA

By Gordon Brown

When boisterous Boreas, the winter king, breezed into Edmonton last Monday he swept away Victoria's rugby spirit and turned thoughts to hockey, skating and house sports.

Vic rugby team's aspirations to all the titles were shattered by abolition of finals in the six-man league, but the red and black juniors walked off with honors in their division.

The Vic 12-man squad put up a good fight against Scona last Saturday but dropped a 10-1 decision.

The Students' Union at its Wednesday meeting decided to give a special sweater to Coach "Soldier" Thomas as an expression of appreciation for his splendid services.

Thursday and Friday afternoon in the assembly hall Lits were held at which were shown three University Department of Extension films: "The Sea of Strife," a story of the modern Mediterranean; "London, Heart of the Empire," and "Germany's Invasion of Austria."

This year's Argosy's first venture came out on Tuesday and is really a paper worth talking about. Bryce Rohrer, in his editorial, certainly strikes the old nail on the head when he suggests holding of the Union's session in the assembly hall where spectators can be comfortably accommodated. The Argosy is sponsoring a photography contest this year and expects to draw some candid snaps.

Mr. Baker and the Music club are going to spirit us away to the blue Pacific during the first week in December when they present the operetta, "Love Pirates of Hawaii." Cast for this show includes Betty Gunderson, Natalka Ewasiuk, Jean Reilly, Huena Slack, Fay Nicoll, Madge Bryant, Don Warner, Ken Young and Joe Shoctor, and completing the company is Roma Downie, accompanist, and a mixed chorus.

An organization meeting of the boxing and wrestling club was held Tuesday. Dr. Willis is directing the wrestlers, Capt. Towerton the pugilists and the actual pulling and cauliflowering will start next week.

Election of room captains for the boys' house league took place on Tuesday and the schedule is also due to get under way next week.

EASTWOOD

By Ronald Jeffels

Things have been rather quiet around the school this week for the October exams are in progress. However, the future holds a store of good things for Eastwoodites.

On Nov. 10, the Eastwood Alumnae Association will hold an Armistice ball in the school gym. The affair promises a good time for all senior students and ex-students, so come along.

On the 25th, the annual oratorical contest will be held, the winner to receive the silver cup now held by room 21. Subjects chosen by the speakers must relate to youth and youth problems. This the contest will not only give the students a chance to express their ideas on the subject of youth but will also be educational for the other students.

Basketball is the password to the gym these days. House leagues have been arranged and try-outs are being held for the senior teams.

The Union has certainly aroused school spirit this year. Many students are sporting crests and schools sweaters have been ordered.

The print contest held by the Phi Kappa was won by Phil Reeves.

McDOUGALL COMMERCIAL

By Isabel Young

Ian Ramsey has been elected as a new Students' Union representative for Group 6, replacing Ken Tanner who has resigned. At a Students' Union meeting this week, it was decided that Commercial have school sweaters. The color of these sweaters has not as yet been decided but it is expected that they will be yellow and black.

At a meeting of the bowling league last week, Doris Finley of McDougall was elected president of the girls' league. The girls are planning a banquet and dance at the end of the season, with the winning team being presented with the bowling trophy now in possession of McDougall.

WESTMOUNT

By Bert Nightingale Jr.

Don Arnett is leader of the Students' Union. Elected by a powerful majority, the popular Grade XII student was officially made president on Tuesday morning to the tune of 114 votes.

Runner-up was Audrey Walker with 92 votes.

The election speeches were held the day before with many varied promises being made. School sweaters, pennants and handkerchiefs were offered. As one wag put it: "Take your choice fellows, you've been offered a whole school wardrobe!" Altogether the election was one of the most interesting the ex.ra-curricular activities seen in a long time.

A week ago Wednesday the W.H.S. Debate Club held its first open forum of the season. Question under discussion was: "Did Mr. Chamberlain do the right thing in the recent Czechoslovakian crisis?" Surprisingly enough the verdict was that the gentleman in question had erred!

STRATHCONA COMMERCIAL

By Irene Lincoln

Activity at Scona Commercial is now in full swing, members of the Students' Union executive chosen being Herb. Forester, president; Ernest Allen, first vice-president; Josephine Davies, second vice-president; Irene Lincoln, secretary; Herbert Sheppard, treasurer, and Ulric Green, assistant treasurer.

A successful hike to The Pines opened the season's social events on October 19, with over 75 present. Several meetings have been held by the executive, who are planning student activity.

The first literary meeting will be held in Strathcona high school Tuesday, November 8, at 7:45 p.m., in the form of a special sound motion picture and comic cartoon, followed by musical numbers and dancing. Proceeds will go toward payment of the school motion picture camera.

Evelyn Neilson, Herb Sheppard and Irene Lincoln were appointed as committee in charge of the event. All former students are cordially invited to attend.

Young People Hold Meeting At Red Deer

SYLVAN LAKE, Nov. 5.—About 85 persons from towns in the Red Deer presbytery gathered in Memorial Presbyterian church at Sylvan Lake Sunday to attend the Young People's rally. Rev. R. L. Taylor, of Innisfail, was in charge of the meeting, which started at 3 p.m. Following the opening songs and devotional period, H. J. Cody, vice-president of the Sylvan Lake young people's group, welcomed the visitors from outside points. Organ music was provided by Miss Lily Cuendet, A.T.C.M.

Four discussion groups were then formed and subjects chosen, summaries of the discussions later being submitted to the united rally. At the recess luncheon was served. Evening services, conducted by the Innisfail group, found the church filled to capacity, with Rev. R. A. Sinclair of Sylvan Lake taking the sermon.

C.G.I.T. Notes

The "Excelsior" group of the Highlands United Church senior C.G.I.T. under the leadership of Miss Helen Cotterell held election of officers one night recently. The election ran as follows:

President: Martha MacAndrew; secretary-treasurer: Nancy Wigston; councillor: Lois Foster; press reporter: Jean Thomson.

The C.G.I.T. Leaders' Council will hold their next meeting on Monday evening, November 7, at 6.30 p.m. It will be a supper meeting. The regular discussions will commence at 7.30. All leaders are urged to attend.

Officers Chosen At Bruce United

BRUCE.—The young peoples' society of the Bruce United church met recently to elect officers and to consider plans for the ensuing year. The new executive includes Miss Edith Bennett, president; J. R. Hemphill, vice-president, and Miss Evelyn Stambaugh, secretary-treasurer.

In keeping with their program, which is intended to contribute to the religious and social life of the community, the organization will sponsor a social evening on November 10, when winter activities will be arranged. The Bruce society expects to participate in the presbytery gathering of United church young people which takes place at Irma, Alta., on November 5 and 6.

Hallowe'en Party Has Dual Purpose

BAWLF.—Normana school house was the scene of a jolly Hallowe'en party Monday evening. The school room was decorated with emblems symbolic of the season. Games and contests featured the evening's entertainment.

The party took on a dual purpose in compliment to the Bitcon children, Marjory, Andrew, Bobby and Harold, who will leave soon for New Westminster, B.C., to reside.

While the teacher, O. Fadum, and his pupils regret their departure, the best of fortune is wished them, one and all, in their new home.

A delicious lunch, roasted weiners and toasted marshmallows, was served, and a delightful evening was enjoyed.

Hitting The Trail

Avonmore Olympics — Recently organized under leadership of Rev. Mr. Young, appointed the following executive at the last meeting: Jimmy Paul, chief ranger; subchief, John Baird; tally, Ernie Hudson; cache, Irvin Burkholder. Present membership of the group is 18 boys.

Central Aces welcomed an old friend to their club meeting last week, Bob Bolander. Former mentor of the group and now residing in Winnipeg, Mr. Bolander spoke briefly to the boys concerning the importance of the church in a boy's life. Special feature of the game period were two boxing matches; first, Duncan Ritchie vs Art Yates; second, Jimmy Gee vs Frank Calloway. The group will be active again this year in Trail Ranger sports and will be entering a team in the basketball league which began October 29. Leader of the group is Jack Bolander.

McDougall Rockets—Plans for a party were discussed at a recent meeting and Robert Foster was elected as convener. Recent sports activities include exhibition games in basketball against Bissell and a rugby game vs Wesley Tigers. Ping pong tournament in the club is well under way with Don Blue in the lead. Gus Barootes has been elected as chairman of a committee for designing a group crest. Christmas cards were distributed at the last meeting to the boys. Last year over $20 was raised for the club treasury by selling these cards.

Bissell — Held Hallowe'en party Wednesday night. About 90 boys attended from Bissell, Buchanan and Beverly. Games and contests were held. Hall was decorated with orange and black streamers, cats, witches and bats. Doughnuts and coffee followed by marshmallows and apples were served as refreshments. Rev. Mr. Stephens was master of ceremonies, assisted by Rev. J. Wiznuk. Other leaders were Mr. Boyes, Jack Benbow, Miss George and the Bissell Boys' Leaders.

Masquerade Party Draws Big Crowd

HARDISTY.—Colorful masquerade costumes thronged the I.O.O.F. hall in Hardisty Friday evening at a Hallowe'en party sponsored by the Hardisty high school students' assembly.

Several contests vied for top appeal at the party. Best of the pie-eaters was John French, while the apple-eating contest was won by Helen Elm. Costumes were judged, the best in their classes being Patricia Cave, best dressed lady, as a striped candy; Waldy Swiniarsky, best dressed gentleman, as a cowboy; Carol Tinnis, most original costume, as Highway 13; Allan Olson, funniest costume, and Margaret Hartley and Reta Bennifield as best dressed children.

"FIRST DAY" COVER

To complete the required denominations of the current postage issue, a new stamp of double size and on which the entrance to Halifax, N.S., harbor is depicted, will be first issued on Tuesday, Nov. 15, 1938. The stamp will be ultramarine in color and of 13-cent denomination, for use on registered mail at ordinary letter rate.

Collectors of "First Day" covers will be able to obtain them, as the new stamp will be available at the larger centres throughout Canada. One will have to take their chance of obtaining well-centred copies at other than Philatelic Division, Financial Branch, P.O.D., Ottawa, Ont., or prepared covers may be sent to the District Director of Postal Service, Ottawa, Canada, together with remittance for the face value of the stamps desired to be used, payable to the Receiver-General of Canada.

Great interest has been taken, especially by collectors in the British Isles, in the collecting of First Day covers. In many cases such are souvenirs of historic dates and appeal to the non-stamp collectors.

U.S.A. COMMEMORATIVES

Quantities Issued

As a matter of interest to collectors of U.S.A., the following figures will prove of interest as they convey the relative scarcity of certain items. The official quantities issued have been supplied the writer by the P.O.D. at Washington, D.C.:

Columbus Exposition, Issue of 1893—1c, 499,195,550; 2c, 1,464,588,750; 3c, 11,501,250; 4c, 19,181,500; 5c 35,248,250; 6c, 4,707,550; 8c, 10,656,550; 10c, 16,516,950; 15c, 1,576,950; 30c, 617,250; 50c, 243,750; $1, 55,050; $2, 45,550; $3, 27,650; $4, 26,350; $5, 27,350.

Trans-Mississippi (Omaha) Exposition, Issue of 1898—1c, 70,993,400; 2c, 159,720,800; 4c, 4,924,500; 5c, 7,694,180; 8c, 2,927,200; 10c, 4,629,760; 50c, 530,400; $1, 56,900; $2, 56,200.

Pan-American Exposition, Issue of 1901—1c, 91,401,500; 2c, 209,759,700; 4c, 5,737,100; 5c, 7,201,300; 8c, 4,921,700; 10c, 5,043,700.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition, Issue of 1904—1c, 79,779,200; 2c, 192,732,400; 3c, 4,542,600; 5c, 6,926,700; 10c, 4,011,200.

Tercentenary of Founding of Jamestown, Issue of 1907—1c, 77,728,794; 2c, 149,497,994; 5c, 7,980,594.

One Hundredth Anniversary, Birth of Abraham Lincoln, Issue of 1909—2c, 150,298,091.

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, Issue 1909—2c, 153,412,711.

Hudson-Fulton Anniversary, Issue of 1909—2c, 72,851,411.

Panama-Pacific, Issue of 1912-13—1c, 334,796,926; 2c, 503,713,086; 5c, 29,088,826; 10c, 16,968,365.

Victory, for Ending of World War, Issue of 1919—3c, 99,585,200.

Stamps of certain denominations are more likely to be destroyed than others, in many cases owing to the class of mail they have franked. An advanced collector will probably enjoy studying the postal rates of a country, at the time of use of a certain stamp and endeavoring to estimate the approximate number of used, as well as unused (mint) stamps that have survived.

If we hear this data is of interest, "quantities" of other commemorative issues will be listed.

MRS. E. D. WRIGHT

who as regent of the Duke of Edinburgh chapter of the I.O.D.E. is assisting with arrangements for the delightful Armistice Eve ball, which is arranged annually by the unit. To be held in the spacious ballroom of the Macdonald hotel on Thursday evening, November 10, the party will take the form of a supper dance and is under the convenership of Mrs. J. B. Starky.

Gay Costumes Add Charm To Guide Affair

Masquerading in colorful holiday attire, members of the various district companies of the Girl Guide Association in Edmonton were party guests one day recently when members of the East Edmonton association entertained at an attractive Hallowe'en party.

Mrs. T. F. Swallow, district commissioner, received the guests and refreshments were served later in the evening.

More than 100 Guides were present, including those from Shiloh, St. Michaels, Salvation Army, St. Stephen's and St. Faith's companies.

Opened by a grand march, an evening of games and competitions was arranged. Miss Betty Martin and Miss Thelma Dobson arranged the program, assisted by Miss Helen Bruce, Miss Janet McDonald, Mrs. C. H. A. White, Miss Noreen Cooper and Miss Ailsa Walker.

Winners of the draw made during the evening are: Mr. A. D. Bruce, 12806 71 street; Miss Thelma Dobson, 11509 92 street, and Mrs. Austin Ash, 9514 102A avenue. Funds from the draw will go toward the erection of a new building at the Girl Guide camp site at Cooking Lake this coming summer.

Paull-Stobie Vows Heard at First Church

First Presbyterian church was the setting for a pretty wedding of interest to many friends in Edmonton one day this week when Margaret Livingstone Stobie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stobie, became the bride of Mr. Albert Earl Paull, son of Mrs. B. Paull and the late Mr. Paull of Edmonton.

Rev. Ross K. Cameron officiated at the service. Miss Ruth Paull, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as bridesmaid, while Mr. James Stobie, Jr., brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception to intimate friends and relatives were arranged in McCauley Community hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Paull will make their home in the city.

Mrs. McConkey To Speak At Peace Meet

Edmonton delegate to the British Commonwealth Peace Congress held in Glasgow, Scotland, just recently, Mrs. William A. McConkey will be welcomed by her many city friends on her return to Edmonton some time during the week-end.

In time to be present for the interesting Edmonton peace conference planned for Friday, Sunday and Monday, November 11, 13 and 14, Mrs. McConkey will thus have an opportunity to repeat for city listeners her impressions of the congress.

WILL PRESIDE

Members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, of which she is president, will hear Mrs. McConkey when she presides at the meeting of their organization called for Monday afternoon. To be held in the Y. W. C. A. club room, the meeting will commence at half after two o'clock.

She will address a public luncheon meeting in the Corona hotel on the concluding day of the conference, on Monday, November 14, at a quarter past twelve o'clock.

MANY GROUPS ASSIST

The conference, at which Mrs. McConkey and other well known city workers will speak, is sponsored by the following associations:

Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, League of Nations Society, League for Peace and Democracy, Edmonton Youth Council, Canadian Business and Professional Women's Club, Women's C.C.F. Club, Council of Jewish Women, Junior Council of Jewish Women, Unitarian Women's Alliance, Victoria W.C.T.U.

Men's Faculty Club of the University of Alberta, Lions Club, Knights of Columbus, University Women's Club, Daughters of Sweden, McDougall Ladies' Aid, Edmonton Public School Teachers, International Association of Machinists.

Westmount Community League, Women's Social Credit Society, Student Christian Movement, Mothers' Council for Protection of Youth, High School Teachers' Association, Local Council of Women, Y.W.C.A., and the Russian Workers' Club.

"Y" Notebook

Miss Glayds Wakelin of Saskatoon will be the guest speaker at the vesper service in the Y.W.C.A. club room at half after four o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Music will be in charge of Miss Edith Hunsperger, Miss Mabel Smith and Miss Joyce Finlay, and tea hostess for the afternoon will be Mrs. N. Allin.

Gay League members are meeting for supper in the "Y" on Monday at six o'clock. Following a short business meeting at the conclusion of supper, glove making will be arranged.

Miss Ruth Zinkan, leader of Gemma Sigma Gamma, will lead a discussion on "What is Etiquette?" following the supper meeting of that group on Monday evening. Supper will be at a quarter to six o'clock.

L.T. To Select Cast Of Play For Festival

Seeking the best local talent available for play which is to carry their banner in the forthcoming sub-regional dramatic festival, the Edmonton Little Theatre has arranged tryouts to take place in Talmud Torah hall on Tuesday evening, commencing at eight o'clock.

Having particular appeal for Albertans, the play is a gripping little drama from the pen of a local playwright — Miss Gwen Pharis — and has its setting in southern Alberta. Miss Pharis has been studying at Chapel Hill University in North Carolina and the play which the Little Theatre has chosen for its festival entry — "Still Stands the House" — was presented this year by the Carolina Playmakers, under the gifted direction of Dr. Frederick Koch, professor of dramatics at the University of North Carolina.

Offering scope to several character types, the cast of the play includes Hester, a woman of about 40 years of age; Ruth, the wife, who is about 25; Bruce, the husband, about 28, and Arthur Manning, who takes a minor part in the action.

Direction of the play is in the capable hands of Miss Eva O. Howard.

Mrs. Sherman Willows has returned to her Calgary home after spending a few days in Edmonton, the guest of her brother, Mr. R. K. Jackson. She was accompanied by Mrs. S. Lough.

the social round . . . . .

DRAWING aside a curtain of cloud, a milk-white moon peered shyly down through the dark branches and smiled at what she saw. Myriads of tiny prisms caught her reflection and flashed back the colors of diamonds at night—the first snow had fallen. The harsh, bare world of an hour or two before was miraculously transformed, all its ugliness mantled in soft, white ermine. The square outlines of the buildings had been smudged out softly until their contours blended with the pearl and grey and amethyst of the sky . . . the naked trees were garbed again in frocks of misty white chiffon glittering with sequins.

Young winter, loth to assume his irksome duties in earnest, had arranged a gay program of races in the streets and the snowflakes chased each other merrily up and down, hid on the collars of the passers-by and danced gaily on their eyelashes. Fascinating things, snowflakes—drifting slowly past your window, they are magic carpets upon which you leap in the mind's eye and are soon away adventuring beyond the very home of some heavenly wedding party proceeding along the Milky Way. Like confetti they impart an atmosphere of festivity and people all look a little happier as they snuggle more deeply into their furs and the snowflakes keep falling, falling.—N.H.L.

TO A SNOWFLAKE

What heart could have thought you?—
Past our devisal
(O filigree petal!)
Fashioned so purely,
Fragilely, surely,
From what Paradisal
Imagineless metal,
Too costly for cost?
Who hammered you, wrought you,
From argentine vapor?
"God was my shaper,
Passing surmisal.
He hammered, He wrought me,
From curled silver vapor,
To lust of his mind:—
Thou couldst not have thought me!
So purely, so palely,
Tinily, surely,
Mightily, frailly,
Insculped and embossed,
With His hammer of wind,
And His graver of frost."

—Francis Thompson.

Women Over Forty
Need have no fear

The much talked of change which occurs at about this time of life is too greatly emphasized as a danger period. True there is for a time a strain on the nervous system. There may be high nervous tension and a disposition to be irritable and moody.

It is a time to avoid excesses and too much excitement and over fatigue. It is essential that the blood be kept rich and the nervous system fully nourished. For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is of almost priceless value at this time. You need have no fear for the future, for to the great majority of women the later years are the happiest of their lives.

It is surprising the number of women who attribute the safe passing of this period and the good health and happiness of succeeding years to the use of this nerve food.

Cool Days Call For Hot Spiced Drinks

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Autumn drinks and spiced meats take the worry out of cold weather. And the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington has a few zestful words on the subject well worth quoting. "A little spice is good, but too much easily spoils a dish. Try adding a grating or two of nutmeg to chicken soup or creamed spinach; a dash of mace to oyster bisque or string beans, a little curry powder to lima beans. Curry powder gives an interest of flavor for a mixed green salad, and a white sauce seasoned with curry is delicious on poached or sliced hard-boiled eggs.

"The ancient Aztecs, it is said, spiced their hot chocolate with cinnamon, and modern Mexicans keep that custom today. So blend a little ground cinnamon with the cocoa if you would like a different flavor for variety's sake. Some persons also like to drop a whole clove or two in a cup of hot tea or hot consomme.

SPICED DRINKS WARM

"For another seasonal drink there's hot spiced grape juice or spiced cider. Put mixed whole spices—cinnamon bark, cloves, and allspice are good—in a cheesecloth bag and drop this into the kettle of fruit juice and bring to a boil. Allow the bag of spices to stand in the juice for several hours or until the drink has just enough spiciness to suit your liking. You will want to serve either of these popular autumn drinks piping hot, so add a little sugar, as hot drinks taste less sweet than the same drinks would served cold. About ¼ to ⅓ cup of extra sugar for each quart of fruit juice has been found satisfactory. Test by tasting.

"Paprika chicken, adapted from Hungary, is a variation of the usual stewed or fricassed fowl. After the bird has been cut up and seasoned with salt and pepper, it is rolled in a mixture of paprika and flour, instead of the usual flour alone. (Prepare enough of the paprika-flour mixture to thicken the gravy later.) After rolling in paprika flour, brown in hot butter or some other well-flavored fat. The paprika in the flour will speed up the browning process.

"Cover with hot water or chicken stock and continue cooking in a tightly covered pan until the meat is tender. Then thicken the gravy with the remainder of the paprika-flour mixture. The quantity of paprika to be added is all a matter of taste.

"Paprika veal, prepared by the same method, is also excellent."

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas in orange juice, crisp bacon, oatmeal muffins, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: English beef soup, hard rolls, baked apples, cocoanut layer cake, tea, milk.

Long-Stemmed American Beauties

VIRGINIA JUDD

This is Miss Virginia Judd, who was chosen by the advertising art directors as the most beautiful model of this year. Virginia was born in Indianapolis, Ind., twenty-two years ago. She came to my office [illegible] unlike most girls starting in the modelling profession she [illegible] enormous amount of self assurance. This was probably due to the fact that she had won several beauty contests at Butler University, where she attended school, and that she was singled out by the beauty scout of a large and exclusive dress house who brought her to New York to display their clothes.

She soon became bored with the monotony of taking on and off dresses from nine to five-thirty each day and about a month after she arrived in New York she presented herself at my office. She made an immediate impression upon me because of her delightful manner and her appearance. I did feel, however, that in order to be really successful modelling [illegible] to make [illegible]

You will notice that Virginia has rather wide cheekbones and when a person has this facial characteristic it is advisable to bring the lips together very delicately in order to offset it. This can be done by accentuating the natural contour of the lips. This, plus Virginia's natural charm, equipped her for her entrance into the realm of commercial posing. She has been extraordinarily successful in the field progressing every year in her work and earning power.

Virginia is extremely sincere about her career as a model and she leads an almost exemplary life with regards to her daily habits. She eats a carefully balanced diet, although she is not inclined towards heaviness, does not smoke or drink, and above all she does not keep late hours.

She has some recommendations of her own for feminine beauty. They are "Get plenty of sleep, don't wear wacky clothes, try to look as natural as possible, and let your personality do the rest", all is really splendid advice.

Aside from her modelling Miss Judd is extremely interested in the dramatic stage. She has been an understudy in "French Without Tears" and more recently understudied two minor roles in Ina Claire's "Once Is Enough." However, due to the extreme good health of the people that she has understudied she has never once had an opportunity to properly demonstrate her dramatic abilities. She has been offered a similar job in a forthcoming production and perhaps this third time will provide the chance she wants to prove herself in this field.

Virginia has posed for many famous products and her picture can be seen in almost any magazine that you care to look in. Her greatest thrill came when she was chosen as the "Most Beautiful Model of 1938" and was given a costume to wear that was actually worth one million dollars.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—My mother lives on the west coast of the United States and wants us to come out there and look after her. She has about $20,000 and promises to leave it to us if we will come, but my husband hesitates about going because he has a good job where we are and there is not much of his kind of work out there. He says he will go if mother will put her money in our name irrevocably, but she refuses to do that. We have been married 25 years and have both worked hard and done well. Have a nice home. We do not want to sacrifice what we have unless we are sure of something out there. Yet if we don't go mother will think I don't care for her and leave her money to some one else. We have asked her to come and live with us but she refuses. I [illegible] do [illegible] to do. What is your idea in the matter? PUZZLED.

My advice to you is to stay where you are. You are settled in your own home, your husband is prospering, you have your circle of friends and acquaintances and, above all, you are free and independent. I think you would be very foolish to throw all of this away on the chance of some day inheriting some money from the woman who may, after all, change her mind about leaving it to you.

It isn't even a good financial proposition because your husband's salary gives you a much better income than you will have if the three of you try to live on the interest of your mother's $20,000. That's a scant support for three people. Now your husband's job brings enough to support you comfortably and you can also save money.

You are standing on your own feet. You have your own pride and self-respect and the knowledge that you are respected by others, but it will be a far different story if your husband cannot find work and you have to be dependent on your mother.

Anyway, it is ill-waiting for dead men's shoes, as the proverb says. There is nothing that is more degrading and [illegible] does worse things to people's souls than to spend their lives flunkying and flattering old people, waiting and praying and hoping for them to die.

We have all seen that done dozens of times and we have all been cynically amused to see how often they were disappointed and failed to get the money they had counted on, and for which they had done such lickspittle work. For cantankerous old people frequently find making and changing their wills the chief sport of their declining days.

As you put so much stress on your mother's will, be comforted by the knowledge that you are not in much danger of being left out of it even if you do not go to the west coast. Money nearly always follows blood, and people with children rarely disinherit them. I have known people to leave fortunes to relatives whom they hated and to whom they had not spoken for years just because it is a human impulse to keep money in the family.

Raising A Family -

About study. What a problem it is.

There are two ways of regarding it. One is to insist on the student getting high marks, and thus discouraging him when he fails, the other is to take a more lenient attitude. The boy or girl will absorb [illegible] parents [illegible] and let [illegible]

O. R. Barton

All my life I have been trying to make these two extremes meet. I still do not know the best attitude [illegible] effort put into lessons. [illegible] said for both sides.

Most of us look back upon misspent years. "Oh, if we had only known at the time what an opportunity [illegible] more," we cry. [illegible] we should have dug into our books." [illegible] us like a lot of other unpleasant duties, to be shirked and forgotten as soon as possible.

HINDSIGHT ENTHUSIASM

With this regret in mind, or perhaps the sorrow of no education at all, we try to infuse some of our late-gained enthusiasm into our young adolescents. "You'll be sorry," we remind them, "if you don't make hay while the sun shines. Everything you learn now will be of great use, and everything you miss will be one big everlasting regret."

And these youngsters gaze upon us calmly and say to themselves, "Where have we heard that before?" You see, it is impossible to wish our convictions on youth. Youth never learns from OUR experience. They, like generations before them, have to learn from their own experience. Too late, they in turn will say to their children, "What a pity I did not study and find out all there was to know when I had a good chance. Now make the most of yours."

I have discovered, however, that numerous parents possess a very rigid code concerning the success of their offspring. Could it be their self-esteem [illegible] fer through our children just as we expand personally with their success. [illegible] it that he [illegible] and always will have. It's good [illegible]

NERVOUS STRAIN

W[illegible] I adopted a plan. I had noticed [illegible] poorer work, because they were [illegible] best you can and stop worrying," they did better work. It was a policy that paid dividends in their case.

[illegible] as hard a life as some make it out to be. I mean that it is not cruel for children or young people to spend so much time on books and study. Not at this age. But when they are working under the strain of criticism or fear, then the emotional load becomes a burden. Parents will have to work it out in each case. Sometimes patience, sometimes the forcing method.

Why Do Men Marry Women Like This?

Sam went about, looking for office work, humble, ashamed, defeated. Nobody wanted Sam. Laura was frantic with fear and reproach.

WHEN a husband is selfish it isn't so important. That is, most men are instinctively selfish, and selfish through training. They are the rulers of the world. Everything—state laws and religious laws, business buildings and home buildings—has been created to their plan and for their convenience, and if they serenely insist on their own way and expect the women of the family to fall into line, it isn't surprising.

"I can't," says dad, when some plan is suggested. Perhaps it is a Sunday plan, and mother knows he is free on that day, and could do anything he liked. But when she says that they would all love to drive to Aunt Min's for luncheon and afterward swim at D[illegible] Beach, he need only say calmly, "I can't," and the whole plot has to be reconstructed.

"Why can't you, dear?"

"Well, I simply can't. Leave one of the boys with me."

That's the end of that. Mother says patiently, "Well, then we'll do something else."

It's mother's job to plan for everyone, hope everyone will be pleased, remember what sandwiches everyone likes, look quickly from one face to the other to see everyone's reaction, and be more than content herself in the other's content.

And often mother does this. This country is full of, and owes its greatness to, these unrecognized heroines in little country houses and city flats everywhere, these peacemakers, these domestic slaves who ask only that there shall be harmony and happiness in the family circle, and look for nothing more in life.

BEWARE OF SELFISH WOMEN

Just the same, as I started to say, when a wife is selfish the home situation is infinitely more difficult than when a husband is. A man's selfishness is somewhat understandable. He works hard. He gets very tired. His home ought to be the place where he can relax and have things his own way.

But a selfish wife is the destruction of her husband's and children's happiness, and if a young man about to marry can ascertain one thing clearly about his sweetheart, it ought to be that she is not a selfish woman.

He can tell this, if his infatuation has left him any wits at all, by her family's attitude toward her, and by the things her friends casually and unsuspectingly reveal. If, at the family table, her little brother and sister openly rejoice that at last Gertie is going to get out; if her mother carries the dishes into the kitchen and her father goes out to the gate to get his evening paper, then let the young man beware! Gertie may be the prettiest girl and the best dancer in town, and her kisses may be unbelievably sweet, but if her answer to her mother's request for help is, "Oh, pile 'em in the sink, mama, Lizzie'll do 'em tomorrow!" then something is all wrong with Gertie, and the sooner her young man breaks his engagement the better.

A man I knew well married a pretty, soft, slender young thing some 25 years ago. Laura was the spoiled pet of a big brother and an adoring father and mother, and even from the beginning some of us knew what he was getting in Laura. She used to boast that she couldn't get a cup of tea, and her lovely hands occupied about an hour of her attention every day.

THEY WERE ALWAYS IN DEBT

He could afford a good servant for her in those days, poor Sam, and Laura never washed a dish or set a table. She was extravagant, and they started spending $5,000 a year on a $2,400 income. Sam Brown strained and worried, got a rise, worked nights, managed somehow to keep afloat, and Laura won the admiring praise of her circle by producing a son. That was almost too much for anyone! What a perfectly wonderful thing for her to do. From the praise that was bestowed on Laura one might have thought little Bruce heir to the throne of Russia.

The Browns were always in debt. Always—always—always there were bills on which Sam paid what he could before the new bills came flooding in. Laura had to have a new coat every winter; "people got tired of seeing her in the old coat." Bruce had to have everything, including white kid gaiters and riding lessons. The brothers and father and mother didn't help [illegible] with anything but praise of Laura; they loved to see her look smart, and wondered how she did it on a small salary.

Well, bad times came about 10 years ago, and Sam worked and worried harder than ever. Laura complained a good deal, and reminded him frequently that other men appeared to be weathering the gale better than he did. She sympathized deeply with Bruce, who was in college and had a small battered car, because he [illegible] the holiday trips other boys did [illegible] ago; went quietly out of existence. Sam went about, looking for office work, humble, ashamed, defeated. Nobody wanted Sam. Laura was frantic with fear and reproach. She couldn't understand why this trouble should come to her, she never had done anything except be a good wife and mother and try to keep the house lovely and give Bruce every advantage.

DRIVEN TO DISTRACTION

After months of this Sam took to lurking at home, playing solitaire. Laura still went out, bravely telling her friends that something would break soon. It did. It was Sam's heart. Lonely and bewildered and helpless Sam left his cards one morning and went into the bath-room and shot himself.

Then the sympathy and loyalty for Laura! That poor [illegible] wonderful woman. Sam left $15,000 life insurance, which was well enough in aim, but he left debts amounting to more than $8,000, which was simply contemp[illegible] these, but in the end she had to pay furriers and department stores and country club and private school almost the entire sum, and everyone was edified. "Laura paid dollar for dollar," her family told one, almost reverently.

After it was all over she f[illegible] she and Bruce ought to take a trip, so they went abroad. W[illegible] came back [illegible] mother until the old lady died, when it appeared [illegible] been secretly put into an [illegible] and that started everyone talking about poor Laura ag[illegible] misfortune after another! La[illegible] went to live with her broth[illegible] they were having hard [illegible]

Now she has clamped down [illegible] mollusc on Bruce. Her darling [illegible] is her sweetheart. Bruce wants to get married, but naturally he is having struggle enough supporting his mother. "Gosh, if mama'd only not run up bills!" said Bruce to me recently.

When I last saw Laura she was buying a few daffodils in February, "to make my boy's lunch table sweet." She said she loved luxurious little touches in a home.

QUESTION OF VALIDITY

[illegible]

"Under these circumstances I do not think that this is a case in which the declaratory judgment sought should be made.

[illegible] para. (d) that the provisions of the said Act insofar as [illegible]

"The minister of trade and industry [illegible] as one to which this Act applies [illegible] provision for the licensing of the plaintiff under this Act nor [illegible] tions of any kind pursuant to the said Act.

"Until the minister has done some, or all of these things, the balance of the Act except Sec. 10 (supra) has no application to the plaintiff. Insofar as this Act is concerned the plaintiff is a stranger to it. The plaintiff and its business is not and has not been affected by it. I therefore decline to make the three declarations requested.

"In reference to 'The Licensing of Trades and Businesses Act,' being Ch. 67 of the Statutes of Alberta [illegible] ture of Alberta [illegible]

[illegible] 67 of the 1936 statutes [illegible]

"It appears to be clear that this order-in-council is entirely ineffective because it is unenforceable—all powers and penalties which could have been enforced against the plaintiff have ceased to exist and had so ceased before this action was commenced. The practical result, as far as the department of trade and industry and the plaintiff are concerned, is that order-in-council 129-37 stands for whatever it says but there is no power in existence to enforce it.

[illegible]

"There is no power in that Act for the Lieutenant Governor in Council to make any such order [illegible] Order-in-Council 129/37 was made under the 1936 Licensing Act and by Sec. 10 can be annulled only by orders made by the minister in pursuance of the provisions of the Act (the 1937 Act) and no such orders have been made.

"It therefore appears to me that where the parent legislation has been repealed, the Order-in-Council originally issued under that parent legislation has been rescinded, and the replacing Order-in-Council [illegible] unenforceable [illegible] the plaintiff before [illegible] declaratory judgment should [illegible] made as to the validity or the application of any of these measures. The declarations sought in paras. (ab), (ac), (ad), (e) and (f) and (g) are therefore refused.

"Para. (aa) seeks a declaration that 'The Alberta Social Credit Realization Act' of the Statutes of Alberta 1938, which came into force on the 31st day of March, 1938, is ultra vires of the Legislature of the Province of Alberta.

"The plaintiff argues that this Act is intended to take the place of 'The Alberta Social Credit Act' which was held ultra vires by the Supreme Court of Canada in 'Re Alberta Legislation (1938) 2 D.L.R. 81, and has since been repealed.

"In view of what I have said in reference to that Act in dealing with para. (a) and in view of my finding that there is no evidence to show that either the rights or the liabilities of the plaintiff were or are affected by its provisions, it would be improper for me in this action to make the declaration requested, and it is therefore refused.

"The plaintiff's action is dismissed. On October 25th, 1937, the Licensing Branch of the Department of Trade and Industry wrote the plaintiff that 'pursuant to the provisions of The Licensing of Trades and Businesses Act the Licensing of the wholesale trade is in effect and your license for this year is overdue' intimating that it was under The Licensing Act of 1937, recently passed, that the Department was proceeding. This was not the fact. The letter could not have referred to the 1936 Act, because it had been repealed. The Department at that time knew that it was proceeding only under Order-in-Council 129-37.

"This incorrect intimation was [illegible] by the Department enclosing to the plaintiff in its letter of February 2nd, 1938, a copy of the 1937 Licensing Act. I have no doubt that these letters to a degree misled the plaintiff as to its legal position and were to some extent, at least, the cause of this action. Because of that belief I am allowing no costs to the defendant."

CHAMBERLAIN TRIP TO ITALY IS ANTICIPATED

Prime Minister Expected Go To Rome After Seeing French Leader

LONDON, Nov. 5. — The Daily Mail and Financial Times (Independent) predicted today Prime Minister Chamberlain probably will meet with Premier Mussolini after his trip to Paris, which the entire press warmly welcomed.

The Daily Mail's political correspondent wrote, "after his visit to Paris, Mr. Chamberlain's next move will probably be a meeting with Premier Mussolini somewhere in the Mediterranean or in Rome. It is clear that Mr. Chamberlain is intent on hurry-forward discussions which may lead to another four-power conference. His experts and advisers are now examining the colonial problem and other important aspects of a general European understanding."

FUTURE TO BE REVIEWED

The Financial Times observed, "Ample opportunity will be provided at the Paris conference between the statesmen at which the future of Europe may be fully reviewed. Mr. Chamberlain is likely to have further personal contact with Herr Hitler. It is vitally important therefore that he should know fully the mind of M. Daladier and his colleagues before the interview is arranged.

"This is all the more necessary because economic questions are likely to arise in any new discussions between the Prime Minister and the Fuehrer. This also applies to discussions which Mr. Chamberlain may soon have with Signor Mussolini."

SOLIDARITY IMPERATIVE

The Daily Herald (Labor) remarked: "If, as some think, a conflict in diplomacy, if not in war, between the democracies and autocracies is inevitable, democratic solidarity is imperative.

"If as others hold it is possible to find a reasonable basis for a working agreement with the dictators, it will be the more possible if the democratic states attempt the venture in good accord and good understanding. After Munich, as before, Anglo-French co-operation is the essential condition for European peace."

ALBERTA WILL PAY EXPENSES CATTLE TO FAIR

CALGARY, Nov. 5—Alberta government will pay all expenses to send four cars of cattle to the Golden Gate exposition opening in San Francisco next February, Hon. D. B. Mullen, provincial minister of agriculture, told livestock men at the Calgary livestock show Friday.

"We must give every encouragement to the raisers of commercial cattle in order to show the United States that your government is behind your efforts," he told the cattlemen.

The shipment to San Francisco will consist of a carload of selected specimens from each of the three commercial cattle classes of Aberdeen-Angus, Herefords and Shorthorns and one mixed car of all three breeds.

The show concluded here Friday with a parade of Alberta stock which will be entered in the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto.

ALBERTA—30%—SICK

Eighteen years in treating the sick in Alberta has convinced me that 30% of our population are sick at all times. In my opinion 15% of our population are suffering with chronic ailments!

YOU ASK WHY? The Cause of Their Illness Has Never Been Located!

Every one of us has been taught that NATURE is the great physician. Each one of you know of many cases that have been given up as hopeless by all Doctors, and still — the patient recovered completely—in time, without treatment of any description. NATURE did this. We cannot leave all to Nature, however.

Nature will do wonders for the sick, provided the BODY STRUCTURE is 100%. Every one of us have abused our bodies by HARD WORK, lifting and straining sidewise, backwards and forwards; or a FALL ON THE ICE or a POLISHED FLOOR. IN THOUSANDS OF CASES this abuse is the DIRECT CAUSE OF ILLNESS TODAY.

If you are sick, and your trouble is listed in these columns, I shall without obligation, give you my ADVICE and a

COOKING LAKE FARMER DIES OF GUN WOUND

[illegible] Gillespie, South Cooking Lake [illegible] aged between 42 and 45 died in University hospital at 4.30 p.m. Friday from a .22 [illegible] wound [illegible]. His death is attributed to suicide.

R.C.M.P. reported that the man's [illegible] found him choking in [illegible] at 11 a.m. Friday, and found that he had shot himself in [illegible] the bullet emerging from his left temple. She rushed to a store and telephoned R.C.M.P. in Edmonton. Arriving at the farm the police rendered first aid to the wounded man, and then rushed him to hospital, arriving at 1:20 p.m. He lived four hours.

Police said the man was reported to have been worrying about the health of his wife, now in General Hospital. Four children, all attending school, survive him. His parents, living at Daysland, were notified by the police.

No inquest is planned.

Dr. Norman Allin Is New Officer Of Garneau League

Dr. Norman Allin was elected to the executive as chairman of the [illegible] committee of the Garneau Community League, at the annual meeting in the Community club house Friday night.

All other officers were re-elected, as follows: S. J. McCoppen, honorary president; Dr. A. F. Keillor, president; Thomas McIlveen, vice-president; A. A. Campbell, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Adair, chairman of the social committee; Emil Skarin, grounds and buildings committee; A. E. Might, educational committee; Mr. Campbell, sports.

Annual reports were received and the league decided to study the question of obtaining sidewalks on 110 street, between 82 avenue and Garneau school.

FAIR SURPLUS NOW $23,000 ABBOTT SAYS

Manager Reports $43,000 Spent On Exhibition Grounds Improvements

Financial statement presented by P. W. Abbott, K.C., managing director of the Edmonton Exhibition Association at a meeting held Friday evening at the Arena, disclosed a surplus of more than $23,000 on the year's operations after charging up $6,000 for maintenance. This figure does not allow for plant depreciation.

It was recommended by Mr. Abbott that $7,600 be written off the plant and equipment this year for depreciation. The recommendation was adopted.

GOOD INVESTMENT

Mr. Abbott pointed out that $43,000 had been expended in additions and improvements to the grounds, [illegible] that the expenditure was one of the best investments made by the association.

Substantial increase in the cash awards in the heavy horse classes for the spring fat stock and horse show to be held here April 10 to 15 [illegible] was contained in the draft prize list submitted for approval. The directors also approved the draft prize list for the Edmonton poultry show, to be held in the Market Square building January 9 to 11, inclusive. Additions to this prize list include senior and junior trio classes.

DELEGATES

F. W. Kemp and Manager P. W. Abbott were appointed delegates to Canadian Association of Exhibitions meeting to be held at Toronto, and also delegates to the International Association of Fairs and Expositions which will meet at Chicago. They will leave for eastern Canada Saturday, November 12.

BALLOTS REACH CHIPEWYAN FOR NORTH ELECTION

United Air Transport airplane, flown by Grant McConachie and carrying the ballot boxes with ballots for the Fort Chipewyan and Fort Fitzgerald polls in the Athabasca constituency by-election on Monday next, arrived at Chipewyan Friday afternoon and delivered the ballot box for that point.

Pilot Dame planned to take off for Fitzgerald on Saturday morning and deliver the box to that point.

All other boxes have been delivered. There are 43 polls in the riding, three more than in the 1935 general election.

Former Edmonton Constable Given Transfer in B.C.

A constable with the Edmonton police force from 1907 to 1911, John Cameron, former chief constable at Vancouver and New Westminster, has been transferred from the Zeballos to the North Vancouver detachment of the B.C. provincial police, according to a Vancouver news despatch. Const. Cameron has been in police work in Canada since 1907, joining the Edmonton force in that year on his arrival from Scotland. He left this city in 1911 to join the Vancouver force.

Ready To Welcome Royalty

LIEUT.-GOV. BOWEN

PREMIER ABERHART

MAYOR FRY

Warm Welcome Planned For Royalty's Journey To Province Next Year

When Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visit Canada next year, Edmonton and the whole of Alberta will vie with the rest of the country in according the Royal visitors a whole-hearted welcome that will stand out brilliantly in the history of the nation and in keeping with the significance of the first occasion on which a reigning monarch has visited the country.

Dates of the Royal visit and the itinerary to be followed have not been announced, but already preliminary plans are being laid to make the occasion memorable.

His Honor Lt. Gov. J. C. Bowen on Saturday stated he had received no official communication in respect to Their Majesties' [illegible] felt that as [illegible] Premier W. L. Mackenzie King [illegible] from his [illegible] information would be [illegible].

Pending receipt of [illegible] no plans have been made for the visit, said His Honor.

CEREMONIAL

"But," he said, "I [illegible] my [illegible] the [illegible] manner befitting [illegible] dignity and ceremonial [illegible] bring to Their Majesties a full realization of the loyalty and devotion of their Alberta subjects. I feel [illegible] will overlook nothing to ensure that Alberta's [illegible] keeping with the importance of the event."

Premier William Aberhart has stated that he has received no communication from His Honor in respect to Their Majesties' visit. He has received a letter from His Worship Mayor John W. Fry in respect to inviting Their Majesties to this city and he has communicated it through official channels. Pending receipt of definite word the government has made no plans, but it is understood that every effort will be made to insure a dignified, memorable visit.

Elsewhere in the [illegible] preparations are being made to welcome Their Majesties.

FAVORITE PLACE

Alberta always has been a favorite visiting place for Royalty when in this country and [illegible] occasions testify to the [illegible].

Veterans' organizations and many others are discussing Their Majesties' [illegible] ing plans laid well ahead for the event.

"We have had many offers from patriotic organizations, businessmen and other groups of support and co-operation in whatever plans we may make for the welcome of Their Majesties the King and Queen," said Mayor John W. Fry when questioned on possible plans for the Royal visit next year.

"Of course, we can't make plans yet as we don't know when the King and Queen [illegible] long they [illegible].

"Whatever [illegible] arrange for Their Majesties [illegible]."

MILITARY

[illegible] Lieut.-Col. F. [illegible] M.M. [illegible].

The Royal party will receive a salute of 21 guns. They will probably receive the salute at the parliament buildings, the Colonel said. There will probably be a public reception at the parliament buildings, and Their Majesties will review the military units, possibly on the Municipal golf course.

[illegible] streets of the city [illegible].

AIR SHOW

[illegible] Edmonton and Northern Alberta Aero Club, Canadian Airways, Mackenzie Air Service and United Air Transport [illegible] Air Force [illegible] definite has yet been decided upon.

But W. Leigh Brintnell, president of Mackenzie Air Service; W. R. "Wop" May, superintendent of Canadian Airways, and Grant McConachie, president of United Air Transport, have expressed their willingness to co-operate with civic and celebration officials in any way they can in an effort to make the visit of the King and Queen a successful and pleasurable one.

500 Attend Ceremonies For New Minister Of Church

REV. BROWN IS INDUCTED HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Pastor From Montreal Succeeds Rev. McLeod At Robertson Church

Induction services for Rev. J. Gordon Brown, formerly assistant minister of the Erskine United church, Montreal, as new pastor of the Robertson United church were held Friday night. Rev. A. K. McMinn, of McDougall United church, was chairman, and approximately 500 persons attended the ceremony.

The new pastor succeeds Rev. Hugh S. McLeod who relinquished [illegible] present position in Victoria. Since [illegible] Rev. McLeod [illegible] conducted by various ministers from all parts of Alberta.

30 PASTORS

Names of 30 well-known pastors in the Dominion were submitted [illegible] On September 3, a confidential committee recommended Rev. Brown who was unanimously accepted by the congregation. A [illegible] was extended, which the Montreal minister accepted.

[illegible] Rev. Brown, Dr. F. S. McCall, principal of [illegible] Mr. Brown. "R[illegible] United [illegible] the speaker, "and [illegible] ed upon to initiate some great movement, as it has in the past, I [illegible]

Rev. Dr. George A. Macdonald, of Knox U[illegible] to Rev. Brown. "Your new [illegible] of which you will soon hear," he told the congregation. "I and the congregation of Robertson United church, are here to promise that all your dreams built up around this church will all be realized. I extend you my best [illegible] your 'pilgram days,'" he concluded.

G. A. Kevan, organist and choirmaster of the church, conducted the choir in the induction music. A [illegible] church followed the ceremonies, Rev. G. A. Macdonald, chairman of [illegible] charge.

WINTER BRINGS HOLIDAYS FOR NORTH PILOTS

As far as pilots of northland aviation companies are concerned winter has officially arrived, and for the next three weeks, until there is sufficient ice and snow to permit ski-equipped planes to fly into the north only company to be operating commercially northwards from Edmonton will be United Air Transport.

Canadian Airways and Mackenzie Air Service, which operate scheduled runs down the Mackenzie to the Arctic, and to and from the north mining areas, have completed summer operations. Planes [illegible] to Edmonton for their annual overhaul in preparation for "winter operations."

United Air Transport will continue to operate, on wheels, pontoons and skis, changing en route, if necessary. They fly to the Peace River country, Yukon and Vancouver.

United Air Transport, because of the different circumstances encountered on their routes, will not officially notice the "freeze-up" although one or two schedules may be delayed due to weather, Grant McConachie said.

King Edward Park Community Asks For Better School

Signed by residents of the community, a petition is to be sent to the Edmonton Public School Board for better school facilities at King Edward Park school. A resolution was passed at a meeting in the Community hall Friday, stating that sanitary arrangements were unsatisfactory, there were no drinking fountains, and the fire escape was [illegible]

The residents also stated that [illegible] grade five pupils [illegible] go" to Ritchie or Rutherford [illegible] forcing small children, in[illegible] sufficiently clothed, to walk approximately 15 blocks.

Mrs. David B[illegible], curator at the Edmonton Museum of Arts [illegible] gaily that the art gallery could hardly hope for a royal visit but that in any case, while Their Majesties are here, we will certainly "put our best foot forward."

Great enthusiasm at the thought of taking any part in welcoming Their Majesties was expressed by Mrs. E. P. Wellwood, general secretary of the Y.W.C.A. who remarked how "grand it would be" if the King and Queen would inspect the Y.W.C.A.

An opportunity of taking part in a celebration for Their Majesties would be greatly welcomed by the Girl Guides Association, and if unable to do anything else they would at least be at the train in a body to meet them, Mrs. E. C. Pardee remarked. Already enquiries have been received from various parts of the country asking if groups of girls could be billeted at that time so they would have a chance to see the King and Queen. "It will be a great occasion for the children," Mrs. Pardee said.

Expressing her love for the Queen and remarking that she [illegible] her even before she was the Duchess, Mrs. A. L. Mackay, president of the War Widow's Association said the organization would do everything in its power to help in the celebration.

Below is the statement in part issued by the Bureau of Relief and Public Welfare in connection with this matter.

ASK ABOLITION

"At the last sitting of the legislature every brief presented to the government [illegible] unemployed organizations from all centres of the province, expressed their wish that the dining halls as a medium of relief, be abolished, and there has been no request from organizations that relief dining halls be re-opened.

"There are some single men who endeavor to arouse public sympathy by refusing the mediums of relief that are available, and endeavor to give the impression that governments are remiss in making provision for their care, not realizing that it is their first responsibility to provide for themselves and that government assistance should only be forthcoming when they are unable to do so. They should be willing to co-operate by accepting the mediums of relief that have been made available to them by the Dominion and the province."

Broadway Smart Guys Gasping As Caplin Produces Another Champ

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Smart Guys along Broadway still are gasping over the latest exploit of their free lunch benefactor, Hymie Yonkel Caplin, who steered Solly Krieger into the world middleweight championship at Seattle Tuesday night.

Caplin's achievment, an amazing one insomuch as Krieger was figured around these parts as nothing but a second-rate slug putsch, is the greatest news Broadway chislers have heard since Hymie opened a restaurant.

Johnny Loftus Drops Decision to Jimmy Holmes In Eight-Round Semi-Windup

CALGARY, Nov. 5.—The comeback attempt of Eddie MacSporran of Edmonton, former Western Canada middleweight boxing champion, was halted here last night. He lost a 10-round decision to Mushy Callaghan Calgary's master ring general, who on six hours' notice substituted for Gordon Grayston of Edmonton.

Fighting one of the finest battles of his career, Callahan won by a wide margin of points. MacSporran landed cleaner blows than the Calgary boxer but "Mushy" sent in five punches to every one of the northern lad's, forcing the pace most of the way.

Found to have a badly injured [illegible] Grayston was refused per[illegible] Edmonton last Tuesday when he won a decision over Callahan.

In the eight-round semi-windup, Jimmy Holmes, 140-pounder of Calgary, gained the decision over Johnny Loftus of Lestock, Sask. Loftus weighed 140.

Young Tunney Lust Battles Gordon Wallace Of Vancouver to Draw in Medicine Hat Fight

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Nov. 5.—Young Tunney Lust, of Medicine Hat, last night earned a draw with Gordon Wallace of Vancouver by pulling himself away from the clinches of the former Canadian welterweight title holder and pounding out the telling punches of the late rounds in their 10-round exhibition bout here.

DISAPPEARED

For more than three months after he was brought home on a stretcher Schmeling completely vanished from the limelight [illegible] black Uhlan of the Rhine actually met his Waterloo on June 21 [illegible] chose not to run again.

On his arrival in Berlin there was none of the spectacular reception, and quietly, only accompanied by his wife, the blonde movie star, Anny Ondra, and his loyal friend Max Machon, Max had retired to his big country estate of Ponickel, way back in Pomerania.

Only a few times did the public hear that there was still somebody [illegible] to the name of Herr Schmeling. Occasionally the papers carried a short notice that Schmeling had sold his fashionable country villa on Lake Scharmuetzel [illegible] Berlin, and sometime later some pictures were published showing Maxie with his cute "Hausfrau" accepting the greetings of their farmhands after bringing in the harvest down at Ponickel. But during all these months Schmeling seems to have convinced himself that he was not born to die a simple Pomeranian landlord.

"Are financial considerations or [illegible] responsible for [illegible] to take the gloves down from the wall [illegible] portant role in American rings [illegible] in German [illegible]

STRICTLY BUSINESS

Those who have had something to do with Schmeling as a business man will rule out at first glance the suggestion that he will continue fighting just for the fun of it, or make the mistake of many [illegible] before him who refused to admit that they were through [illegible]

If it were not for the financial [illegible] But it's been an open secret to [illegible] Black Uhlan sacrificed a large portion of the big purses he made in American rings for building himself up again after losing his horizontally-won title to Max Baer.

SPENT PLENTY

Moreover Schmeling, although [illegible] hesitate to put down the cash to live according to his own and to [illegible]

Maintaining a city apartment, a summer villa on Lake Scharmuetzel and a big estate in Pomerania for hunting expeditions, in addition to supporting his mother and that technical staff hanging around [illegible] cost plenty.

No matter how much Schmeling may have carefully laid aside while luck was with him, it takes a much bigger fortune than Schmeling ever made to keep atop at that pace. It might therefore be safely assumed that Maxie will not discard any possibilities of making some $50,000 in about three fights in Germany and possibly in England before he takes him final leave from the [illegible]

'Peg Monarchs Triumph 3-2 Over Saskatoon Wesleys

SASKATOON, Nov. 5—Gaining a two-goal lead in the first period, Winnipeg Monarchs withstood Saskatoon Wesleys' strong finish and [illegible] a 3-2 victory in a junior [illegible] hockey game before 1,160 [illegible] last night. Detroit Red Wings Plan Revive Famed Power Play

DETROIT, Nov. 5.—Detroit Red Wings are out to revive the power play that did a big job in their two marches to National Hockey League championships and the Stanley cup. This time, though, only two wings who were in on the play in its palmy days are still members

"We lost too many games last year because we could not score when the other team was short handed," Manager Jack Adams said Friday. "We've got to revive the power play to start winning again. There's no more effective weapon than a power play."

The Wings' power play this season will feature veterans Ebbie Goodfellow and Herbie Lewis and three recent acquisitions—Car. Liscombe, Alex. Motter and Charlie Conacher.

BACKBONE

Conacher is attempting a comeback with Detroit and Adams expects him to be the backbone of the Wing's attack.

[illegible]

CAUTIOUS

"When you have a set of men who can apply the pressure, the other team doesn't play quite so hard. They want to avoid penalties. They know that losing a man is almost like giving a team a goal

"That's the way it was from 1935 to 1937 when we had Marty Barry, Larry Aurie, Johnny Sorrell, Lewis and Goodfellow to throw in whenever the opposition was penalized. They scored 32 times on that play in 1935-36, an average of three goals every two games. Next season it worked almost as well."

Adams said the play needed men with specializd techniques in shooting and he believes he has them in Conacher and Goodfellow.

HOLD ONE RECORD

DETROIT.—The Detroit Tigers were the only major league baseball team to play out their 154-game schedule in 1938. The Tigers also played a tie with St. Louis [illegible]

Grid Game's Hottest Chunkers Display Wares in New York Hotel

Friedman, Baugh, Luckman Toss Pigskin at Doorknobs

By HENRY McLEMORE

(Special Bulletin Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Three of the hottest chunkers of football leather the country ever saw sat around a hotel room the other night and told how they chunked it.

For two hours the room was filled with nothing more dangerous than imaginary footballs as Benny Friedman, Sammy Baugh, and Sid Luckman told how to knock out a receiver's eye at anywhere from five to fifty yards. Then some over-zealous student of the aerial art went out and brought in three honest-to-goodness footballs. It was hellz-a-poppin' and every man for himself.

"See that knob?" Friedman asked. "Well, its on the five yard line and has got its arms up. Here goes."

The old Michigan chunker, whose tosses to Oosterbaan made him pre-eminent in his day, faded behind a chair and, with a table blocking for him, rifled one that spun the knob so violently the door opened.

"That's just tossing, pal," drawled Slingin' Sammy, the Texan, "but see that picture on the wall?"

He pointed to a print of Gainsborough's Blue Boy.

"Well, its twenty yards away and about to make a cut, and here goes one for a touchdown."

HIGH AND HARD

With that Sammy wrapped his long fingers around the pigskin, took a leap into the air and whipped one high and hard.

"That's good for a touchdown," someone cried as the picture swung back and forth from the impact.

"And the house detective, too," a more cautious spectator added.

But the house man didn't seem to mind, so Luckman, the red-hot Columbia passer, picked out a spot and smacked it with a lazy floater that drifted through the smoke of the room.

"Just practicing for that game on Saturday," he said.

When the targets ran out Friedman, Baugh and Luckman sat down and compared notes on the art of passing a football. They put the lie to the accepted belief a tremendous pair of hands is necessary. Luckman's hands are smaller than the average man's. Short, stubby fingers, and only a moderate spread. Baugh's aren't extraordinarily large. Only Friedman's were large enough to cause any comment. Benny's are modelled after a ham.

BAUGH DIFFERENT

Friedman and Luckman grip the ball in the usual manner, that is, with the tips of the fingers on the laces. Baugh says he couldn't throw a ball holding it that way. The Texan grabs the ball so the base of his thumb is on the laces, and he holds it way back toward the end, not in the center.

All three agreed the chief essential was wrist snap. The ball isn't thrown with the arm at all, but with a terrific whip of the wrist. This holds true whether the pass is one of five yards or sixty. The second most essential item is courage.

I left about this time, because somebody suggested I let Baugh knock a cigarette out of my mouth with a short pass.

"Here's How We Did It"

Three football players, classed as the greatest forward passers of all time . . . in the American game, that is . . . were found together in a New York hotel and here they are as they assumed the poses so familiar to U.S. fans. Left, Benny Friedman, who rose to fame with Michigan and now coaches the city of New York college team; centre, "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh, college star of two years ago, now performing in the pro ranks with Washington Redskins; and right, a current luminary, Sid Luckman, who brings forth the adjectives by his playing for Columbia.

Green Bay Packers Leading Scorers In Pro Football League

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Apparently headed for a new record, the ten teams of the National Professional Football League have scored 999 points in their thirty-five games so far, to keep ahead of the pace set in 1937, when a mark of 1,424 points was established for the season.

Leading the scoring parade are the Green Bay Packers, western division leaders, who have piled up 168 points in eight games for an average of 21. Philadelphia and Cleveland, with 98 and 101, already have exceeded their 1937 totals, while Washington, New York and Brooklyn have better averages than they possessed a year ago.

The defending champion Washington Redskins continue to lead in ground gaining with an average of 301 yards for seven games, to Green Bay's 276 and the New York Giants' 268. The Giants have the best passing percentage, 61 completions in 117 attempts and 52 per cent, with Washington second on 75 completions in 148 tries.

The Detroit Lions, who have allowed their opponents only 49 points, and the Giants, who have held the opposition to an average of 178 yards per game, are the best in these defensive departments.

Fithian Nettles Gang By Winning Very Screwy Wagers

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5.—Nobody is quite sure Fithian Shaw could [illegible] from the No. 1 tee at Cherokee club, [illegible] down to the ninth green and p[illegible] the ball in on the short bounce. Shaw hasn't tried this yet but if he should decide to, he probably would not get many wagers that he couldn't do it. He hasn't lost a wager yet.

They didn't believe that the fleet-footed Fithian could cover the nine-hole, 2,837-yard course in 25 minutes and score 40 or better. Their doubt was pocket money for Fithian. He got around in 19 minutes and scored a 37.

That nettled the gang and they thought they had the rabbit-footed youngster when he bet them he could run the course without clubs in nine minutes, touching every tee and every cup. If he is a golfer, he can't be a track man, they reasoned. They were wrong again. Shaw [illegible] minutes, 52 seconds. His hecklers' bank rolls took another trimming.

Shaw was born in Los Angeles, but his parents moved to Kentucky when he was an infant. He spent 10 years on a [illegible] and became interested in golf four years ago. Local experts say he has the temperament and ability to make a good golfer.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

BATHING THE DOG

The less often you bathe your dog the better. Any hair specialist will tell you that too much water is bad for human hair, and the same is true as regards a dog's coat. It makes the hair brittle, and in those breeds with harsh or wiry coats it softens the texture. Also it dries the skin, rendering it more liable to irritation. Unless absolutely necessary to remove fleas from a dog badly infested with them, or to cleanse the coat of any filth otherwise impossible to remove, the only [illegible] regular brushing [illegible] a dog does not perspire [illegible] so that bathing for [illegible] is unnecessary.

When your dog comes in [illegible] well with an old towel [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] and fill the tub before [illegible] the dog into the tub. The room should be warm, and the water, comfortably hot, should reach about to the dog's elbows. If it stings the hand it is too warm. Any mild soap of good quality will suffice, with a little creolin in the water as a disinfectant. Wash the face with a soft rag, taking care not to get soap in the eyes or water in the ears. Next lather the whole body, always beginning at the neck so any fleas present will rush for the head to escape. Rinse, lather, and rinse again thoroughly. If soap is left to dry in the coat it will produce [illegible]. Lift the dog out [illegible] give it a chance for some [illegible] before going to work with a [illegible] to get it as dry as possible. [illegible] and reward it with a tidbit when finished.

[illegible]

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to [illegible]

FREIGHT SHIP CAPTURED BY REBEL CRUISER

Second Attack Within a Week By Spanish Warship In North Sea

EMDEN, Germany, Nov. 5—Authoritative sources said today a Spanish Government freighter had been captured in the North Sea by the Spanish Insurgent auxiliary cruiser Ciudad de Alicante. The crew of the merchant ship, identified as the Rio Miera, were said to have been imprisoned and the seized ship brought to port here with an Insurgent crew.

This was the second attack within a week by a Spanish Insurgent man-of-war on a Spanish Government [illegible] in the North Sea. The freighter Cantabria, under charter to British operators, was bombarded and sunk by the [illegible] Nadir Wednesday within sight of England's east coast.

"You know [illegible] country?" she asked.

"Fairly well."

"Do you know the bandits, too?"

The Saint [illegible] curious gravity. He looked like a [illegible] bandit himself [illegible] with his alert tanned face and clean-cut fighting mouth and the [illegible]

"Listen," he said. "Once [illegible] I was walking between Evisa and Ota. I saw from my map that the road [illegible] a great [illegible] but they told me at an [illegible] straight across, down into the canyon [illegible] precipice for hours—the path was all great loose stones, and presently one of them turned under my foot and I took a spill and sprained my ankle.

"When I got to the bottom I was done in. I couldn't move another step [illegible] I hadn't any food, but there was a stream running through the bottom of the canyon, so I had water. I could only hope that some one else would try [illegible]

"At the end of the third day a man did find me, and he looked like one of your bandits if any one ever did. He did what he could for me, gave me food from his pack—bread and dried ham and [illegible], the goat's cheese that they make here—and then he said he would go on to Ota and send help for me.

"He could have taken everything I had, but he didn't. He was insulted when I offered to pay him. 'I am a Corsican,' he said, and I've never seen anything so haughty in my life——"

"Then why is M. Duchemin so frightened?"

"They're all frightened of Masquerouge."

Her finely penciled brows drew together.

"Masquerouge?" she said. "Who is Masquerouge?"

"The great bandit. They're all scared because there's a rumor that he's in the district. You ought to be scared, too. They're all offended [illegible] scared of Masquerouge [illegible] He really is a great character, though.

"I remember once the French Government decided it was time that something drastic was done about him. They sent out half the French army to round him up. It was the funniest thing I ever heard of, but you have to know the country to see the joke."

"They didn't catch him?"

The Saint chuckled.

"One man who knew these mountains could laugh at all the armies in Europe."

For a little while the girl was wrapped in unapproachable solitude of thought. Then she turned to the Saint again.

"Monsieur," she said, "do you think you could help me find Masquerouge?"

SEARCHING FOR HUSBAND

They rode out on the dazzling [illegible] track that winds beside the Tavignano — a track which was nothing more than the marks that centuries of solitary feet had left [illegible]

The Saint lounged in the saddle [illegible] like a cowboy, letting his [illegible] at the Café Cyrnos [illegible] sat together over coffee after [illegible] and he had said to her: "Either you [illegible] fall in love with [illegible]"

She had only smiled in her quiet [illegible] sieur—you are wrong in all your [illegible] I am looking for my husband."

The Saint's brows slanted quizzically.

"You mean you are Madame Masquerouge?"

"Oh no. I am Madame Baudier. Louise Baudier."

Then she looked at him quickly and clearly as if she had [illegible] her mind about something.

"The last time I heard [illegible] husband, he was in Corte," she said. "That was two years ago. He wrote to me that he was going into the mountains. He liked to do things [illegible] sleep under the stars and be a man alone sometimes—it is curious, for [illegible] very much a Parisian . . . I never heard of him again.

"He [illegible] going to climb Monte Cinto. I remembered, when I heard the name, that I had read of Masquerouge in the newspapers about that time. And it seemed to me, when I heard you speak of Masquerouge, that perhaps Masquerouge was the answer."

"If it was Masquerouge," said the Saint quietly, "I don't think it would help you to find him now."

Her eyes were still an enigma.

"[illegible]," she said. "It would be something to know."

"But you've waited two years—"

"Yes," she said softly. "I have waited two years."

She had told him no more than that, and he had known that she did not wish to say any more, but it had been enough to send him off on that quixotic wild-goose chase.

DAMSEL IN DISTRESS

He had been leading the way for two hours, but presently, where the trail broadened for a short distance, she brought her mule up beside his, and they rode knee to knee.

"I wonder why you should do this for me," she said.

He shrugged.

"Why did you ask me?"

"It was an impulse." She moved her hands puzzledly. "I don't know. I suppose you have the air of a man who is used to being asked impossible things. You look as if you would do them."

"I do," said the Saint modestly.

It was his own answer, too. She was a damsel in distress — and no damsel in distress had ever called on the Saint in vain. And she was beautiful, also, which was a very desirable asset to damsels in distress. And about her there was a mystery, which to Simon Templar was the trumpet-call of adventure.

In the late afternoon, at one of the bends in the trail where it dipped to the level of the river, the Saint reined in his mule and dismounted at the water's edge.

"Are we there?" she said.

"No. But we're leaving the river."

He scooped water up in his hands and drank, and splashed it over his face. It was numbingly cold, but it steamed off his arms in the hot dry air. She knelt down and drank beside him.

"C'est bon, ca!" She sat back on her heels and looked up at the hills that hemmed them in.

A kind of shy happiness lighted her eyes, almost uncertainly, as if it had not been there for a long time and felt itself a stranger. "I understand now," she said. "I understand why Jacques loved all this, in spite of what he was. If only he could have been content with it . . ."

"You were not happy?" said the Saint gently.

She looked at him.

"No, Monsieur. I have not been [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] Saint turned [illegible] slope the brief [illegible] was fading.

Simon Templar lighted a cigarette as he rode, and he had barely taken the first puff of smoke into his lungs when a man stepped from behind a tree with a rifle levelled and broke the stillness of the evening [illegible]

The Saint turned his head [illegible]

"[illegible]," he said to Louise Baudier. "[illegible]"

THE OUTLAW'S STRONGHOLD

[illegible] superfluous for the red mask from which the Masquerogue took his name, which covered his face from [illegible] chin, was sufficient identification. Watching the girl, Simon saw no sign of fear [illegible] forward. Her face was pale, but she sat straight [illegible] turned back to Masquerogue.

"Comment ca va [illegible]" he murmured genially.

The bandit [illegible]

"Descendez," he ordered gruffly. He glanced at the girl. "You [illegible]—get down."

His eyes, after that glance, remained fixed on her, even after she was down from the saddle and standing by the mule's head. The Saint wondered for the first time whether he [illegible] his zest for adventure override his common sense when he deliberately led her into the stronghold of [illegible] outlawed [illegible]

Masquerogue [illegible]

"Madame [illegible] hands behind you."

He dragged a length of cord from his pocket and threw it across the space between them. The girl looked at it coldly.

"Go on," said the Saint. "Do what the nice gentleman [illegible] It's part of the act."

He could take care of such minor details when the time came, but for the present there was a mystery with which he was much more preoccupied.

When the Saint's hands had been tied, the Masquerogue pointed with his rifle.

"Madame will lead the way," he said. "You will follow, and I shall direct you from behind. You would be wise not to try and run away."

He watched them file past him, and from the sounds that followed the Saint deducted that Masquerogue had taken the mules by their bridles and was towing them after him as he [illegible]

As they moved roughly parallel with the valley, the slope on their right became steeper and steeper until it was simply a precipice, and the rocks on their left towered bleaker and higher, and they were walking along a narrow ledge with the shadow of one cliff over them and another cliff falling away from their feet into a void of darkness.

The path wound snake-like around the fissures [illegible] which the precipice was sculptured, and presently, rounding one of those natural breastworks, they found themselves at a place where the path widened suddenly to become a natural balcony about twenty feet long and twelve feet deep—and then stopped. A natural wall of rock screened it from sight of the valley or the hills on the other side.

Masquerogue followed them into the niche, leading the two mules [illegible]

France's Top Astrologer Finds Comfort For Most Of the World Though Dictators Given Warning

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD

PARIS, Nov. 5—Maurice Privat, France's celebrated astrologer and star-gazer whose prophesies the French people have found come true in the past, has assured them 1939 will bring them no war. There will be lots of difficulties, he says, plenty of "alerts," big expenditures of armament but Europe generally will continue to enjoy the peace promised by the conversations at Munich.

EVEN SO, WHAT DOES THAT PROVE, SHERIFF?
PROVES PLENTY FER ME - AND HIM STARTIN' FILLIN' THIS WELL RIGHT AFTER- WE SHOULD'A GUESSED - WHY, HE AS GOOD AS HINTED AT IT DOZENS OF TIMES- YOU'LL SEE --- IF WE EVER GIT TO TH' BOTTOM OF THIS CONFOUNDED WELL-
OH, WHEN I THINK WHAT A FINE, KINDLY MAN DEAR MR. GUDGE WAS-
AH, YES- EVER THE FIRST TO GIVE OF HIS SUBSTANCE-
HE WAS GOOD- NO WONDER HE PROSPERED-
"IT'S THE SPIRIT, NOT THE AMOUNT," HE'D SAY, WHEN HE'D GIVE A DOLLAR-
TO THINK THAT ONE SO FINE SHOULD MEET SUCH A TERRIBLE FATE-
AH, WE NEVER KNOW- WE NEVER KNOW-
HOW TRUE! HOW TRUE!
BUT WHY DID IT HAVE TO HAPPEN TO SUCH A GOOD MAN?
THAT'S SO OFTEN THE WAY-
I SUPPOSE IT'S WRONG EVEN TO THINK IT- BUT MR. GUDGE WAS SUCH A CRUEL AND HEARTLESS HYPOCRITE, I CAN FEEL NO SORROW- IF WHAT THEY SAY IS TRUE-
SHUX - I DON'T THINK HE'S IN THERE, AT ALL- I THINK OLD SHANGHAI JUST PULLED A BIG JOKE ON FOLKS-

..TIMBERLINE..
AT CERTAIN ALTITUDES IN THE MOUNTAINS THERE IS TO BE FOUND AN IRREGULAR LINE AT WHICH TREE GROWTH STOPS, DUE TO SEVERE CLIMATIC CONDITIONS! THIS IS CALLED "TIMBERLINE."
COPR. 1938 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
THE ALTITUDINAL RANGE OF THIS LINE VARIES WITH THE LATITUDE. IN THE ARCTIC CIRCLE, TIMBERLINE IS AT SEA LEVEL. IN COLORADO, IT IS TO BE FOUND AT ABOUT 11,500 FEET, WHILE AT THE EQUATOR, TREES ARE TO BE FOUND GROWING AT HEIGHTS OF ALMOST THREE MILES.
AS ONE APPROACHES THIS LINE, HE SEES EVIDENCES ON EVERY HAND OF THE TERRIFIC STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE...TREES, TWISTED AND GNARLED, BUT PICTURESQUE.
SOME TREES ARE FORCED INTO A PROSTRATE POSITION AND CONTINUE TO GROW CLOSE TO THE EARTH.

FREQUENTLY, DWARFED TREES ARE FOUND HUDDLED BEHIND HUGE BOULDERS WITH THEIR UPPERMOST BRANCHES IN LINE WITH THE TOP OF THE PROTECTING ROCK, WHICH SHIELDS THEM FROM THE STINGS OF CUTTING WINDS.
ABOVE TIMBERLINE, LONG AFTER A CLIMBER PASSES THE LAST HARDY TREE, ALPINE PLANTS BLOOM PROFUSELY.

HEY, FUZZY, C'MERE... QUICK!
WOTSA MATTER?
T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
YOUR POP CALLED UP MY MOTHER AN' TOLD HER TO TELL YOU SOMETHIN'!
WELL, SPILL IT!
HE SAID TO TELL YOU THE STORK JUST BROUGHT YOUR FAMILY ANOTHER BABY!
NO FOOLIN'!
THINK WE CAN SEE IT?
I DUNNO! MAYBE WE CAN IF WE HURRY!
WHY ARE YOU COMBING YOUR HAIR AT THIS HOUR? IT'S NOT LIKE YOU, TAG!
FUZZY AND OSSIE AN' ME ARE GOIN' TO THE HOSPITAL!
WHAT FOR?
MISSUS DAVIS GOT ANOTHER BABY FROM THE STORK AND WE'RE GOING DOWN TO SEE IT!
I THINK THAT'S NICE OF YOU BOYS! I'M SURE MRS. DAVIS WILL BE PLEASED!
THREE LITTLE BOYS ARE OUTSIDE! ONE OF THEM IS MRS. DAVIS' BOY!
HOLD HER BABY UP.... THEY CAN SEE IT THRU THE GLASS!
NOT THAT, LADY.... WE CAME TO SEE THE STORK!!

“This old world of ours is full of strange people; strange animals; strange facts and strange fancies. Old Mother Nature works wisely and well, but sometimes her ways are too deep, too Curious for us to fathom. But there's a way to keep in touch with the vagaries of nature and learn the whys and wherefores of her strange ways. Daily in The Bulletin, “This Curious World”

DICK TRACY
AFTER WAITING UNTIL THE WIND HAD BLOWN AWAY THE POISON GAS, PAT AND TWO STATE POLICE GO TO THE SCENE OF THE EXPLOSION, HEAR VOICES CALLING FROM THE ABANDONED MINE SHAFT AND FINALLY RESCUE DICK TRACY AND JIM TRAILER.
CHESTER GOULD
WE WOULD HAVE HAD YOU OUT SOONER ONLY OUR HORSES WERE STOLEN SO THAT WHEN THE OFFICER STARTED BACK TO TOWN FOR A ROPE HE HAD TO WALK ABOUT 3 MILES.
OF COURSE IT'S OBVIOUS WHO STOLE THE HORSES!
CERTAINLY! COWARDLY KARPSE DID THAT AFTER HIS WOMAN ACCOMPLICE HAD BEEN CLAWED TO DEATH BY THE BEAR.
HER FINGER PRINTS HAVE BEEN FORWARDED TO THE F.B.I. FOR IDENTIFICATION. SHE OBVIOUSLY IS A FOREIGN AGENT.
McCARD JUST CALLED FROM ALTON, AND SAID THE THREE HORSES WERE FOUND GRAZING IN A WOOD NEAR TERRYTON.
GOOD! THAT MEANS KARPSE IS WORKING HIS WAY TOWARD THE CITY AND HE'LL HAVE TO USE THE HIGHWAY THROUGH THE CARBON HILLS.
WE CAN OVERTAKE HIM THERE!
AND NOW LET US LOOK IN ON A SCENE ALONG THE HIGHWAY IN THE MOUNTAINS MENTIONED BY PAT PATTON.
PUBLIC WORKS CREW
CRUDELY CHOPPING OFF HIS MUSTACHE WITH A PEN KNIFE, AND DONNING A PAIR OF STOLEN OVERALLS, KARPSE EXECUTES HIS NEXT MOVE TO ELUDE THE POLICE.
I'D LIKE TO SEE THE BOSS, PARDNER.
OFFIC
MY NAME'S BLAINE. I LIVE OVER NEAR PAWNEE—GOT A WIFE AND TWO KIDS AND I'VE TRAMPED SEVEN MILES JUST TO GET WORK—WE'RE IN TERRIBLE SHAPE, PARDNER.
WELL—IT AIN'T REGULATION, BUT FILL OUT THIS FORM AND GRAB A SHOVEL.
WANT TO WORK UP HERE OR DOWN WITH THE MOLES?
I THINK I'LL GO DOWN THERE.
WHY MAN YOU LOOK SOFT. YOU CAN'T TOSS DIRT OUTTA THERE.
OH YES I CAN. I'M PRETTY STRONG.
MEN
WO
BESIDES, I'D LIKE IT DOWN THERE. IT'S A GOOD PLACE TO HIDE—THAT IS—AWAY FROM THE SUN'S RAYS, EH?
HM! I GUESS SO.
